THE MANGO-TREE. BY CHARLES KINGSLEY.

He wiled me through the furzy croft; He wiled me down the sandy lane. He told his boy's love, soft and oft, Until I told him mine again.

We married, and we sailed the main-A soldier, and a soldier's wife. We marched through many a burning plain; We sighed for many a gallant life.

had his children-one, two, three ; One week I had them, blithe and soun I sit beneath the mango-shade;

I live my five years' life all o'er-Round yonder stems his children played He mounted guard at yonder door. 'Tis I, not they, am gone and dead.

Their spirits light the golden shade Beneath the giant mango-tree. All things, save me, are full of life : The minas, pluming velvet breasts;

The monkeys, in their foolish strife; The swooping hawks, the swinging nests; The lizards, basking on the soil; The butterflies who sun their wings; The bees about their household toil,

They live, they love, the blissful things. Each tender, purple mango-shoot, That folds and droops so bashful down, It lives; it sucks some hidden root; It rears at last a broad green crown.

"Watch when the mango-apples fall! It lives; but rootless, fruitless, I-I breathe and dream; and that is all.

Thus am I dead: yet cannot die; But still within my foolish brain There hangs a pale-blue evening sky; A fuzry croft; a sandy lane.
