" Look here," cried the parson S. "you must not swear that way in my field."

"you must not swear that way in my field."

"you must not swear that way in my field."

"you must not swear that way in my field."

"you must not swear that way in my field."

"you must not swear that way in my field."

"you must not swear that way in my field."

"you must not swear that way in my field."

"Well, I reckon you'd swear too," said the man, "If you had to plough such a stony field as this." "Not a bit of it," said Mr. S., " Just 1 t me show you ?"

So the parson took hold of the plough, but he very soon had considerable trouble with the stones. Asstoneafter stone caught the ploughshare, Mr. S., ejaculated: "Well I never saw the like!" And this he repeated every time a stone stopped his onward way. As soon as he had ploughed around once he stopped and said to the man: "There, now! You see I can plough BU without swearing." "But I guess it is pretty near as bad to lie," answered the man, "and you told dozens o'lies. Every time the plough of GROCERIES, such as FLOUR, TEA, dress. struck a stone, you said, 'I never saw MOLASSES, FISH, SUGAR, &c. Also, the like,' when the same thing happened a large stock of a minute before!"

GOOD BYE.—It is a hard word to speak. Some may laugh that it should be, but let them. Icy hearts are never kind. It is a word that has choked many a utter-nee and started many a tear. The hand Parks' Cotton Warp! ance, and started many a tear. The hand is clasped, the word is spoken, we part and are upon the great ocean of timewe go to meet again where? God only knows. It may be soon; it may be never. Take care that your good bye be not a cold one-it may be the last that you can give. Ere you can meet your friend RED and ORANGE! again, death's cold hand may have closed his eyes and chained his lips forever. Ah! he may have died thinking you loved him not. Again it may be a long separation! Friends crowd onward and give you their hand. How you do detect in each "good bye" the love that lingers there; and how you may bear away with you the memory of those words many, many days. We must often separate. Tear not yourself away with careless boldness that defies all love, but make BRACKET SHELVES, &c., surplast words linger—give the heart BRACKET SHELVES, &c., your last words linger-give the heart full utterance-and if tears fall, what of it? Tears are not unmanly.
