THE MENNONITES COMING TO CANADA .-A recent Russian ukase promises to result in an important immigration from that country to Canada. In Canada we have freedom to worship God, and are as ready to provide homes for the Mennonites as though there was nothing peculiar in their religious tenets. The Toronto Globe says:—

In the latter part of the last century a body of Mennonites from Germany settled in the south of Russia, not far from Odessa, where they obtained certain privileges from the Emperor Paul; amongst others, exemption forever from military service. The sect of the Mennonites were originally founded in Holland, but is now scattered over numerous countries. They are Baptists holding certain peculiar opinions as to the administration of the rite, and in their objection to bearing arms or inflicting capital punishment resemble in many ways the Society of Friends or Quakers.
