How to Cure a Cold.—One of our citizens, who has been troubled with a severe cold on the lungs, effected his recovery in the following simple manner: He boiled a little boneset and hoarhound together, and drank freely of the tea before going to bed. The next day he took five pills, put one kind of plaster on his breast, another under his arms and still another on his back. Under advice from an experienced old lady he took all these off with an oyster-knife in the afternoon, and slapped on a mustard paste instead. His mother put some onion drafts on his feet and gave him a lump of tar to swallow. Then he dut some hot bricks to his feet, and went to bed. Next morning another old lady came in with a bottle of goose oil, and gave him a dose of it in a quill, and an aunt arrived about the same time from Bethel, with a bundle of sweet fern which she made into tea, and gave him every half hour until noon, when he took a big dose of salts. After dinner his wife, who had seen a fine old lady of great experience in doctoring, on Franklin Street, gave him two pills of her make, about the size of an English walnut and of a similar shape, and two tablespoonfuls of home-made balsam to keep them down. Then he took a half pint of hot rum at the suggestion of an old sea captain in the next house, and steamed his legs with an alcohol bath. At this crisis two of the neighbors arrived, who saw at once that his blood was out of order, and gave him a half gallon of spearmint tea, and a big dose of castor oil. Before going to bed he took eight of a new kind of pill, wrapped about his neck a flannel soaked in hot vinegar and salt, and had feathers burat on a shovel in his room. He is now thoroughly cured, and full of gratitude. We advise our readers to cut this out and keep it where it can be readily found when danger threatens.—Danbury News.

Covetousness.—Thus pungently writes Dr. South:

Must it not now be one of the greatest miseries for a man to have a prepetual hunger upon him, and to have his appetite grow fiercer and sharper amidst the very object and opportunities of satisfaction? Yet so it is usually with men hugely rich. They have, and they covet; riches flows in upon them, and yet riches are the only things they are still really looking after. Their desires are answered, and while they are answered they are enlarged; they grow wider and stronger, and bring such a dropsy upon the soul, that the more it takes in the more it may: just like some drunkards, who even drink themselves athirst, and have no reason in the world for drinking more but their having drank too much already.

There cannot be a greater plague than to be always baited with the importunities of a growing appetite. Beggars are troublesome, even in the streets as we pass through them; but how much more when a man shall carry a perpetually clamorous beggar in his breast, which shall never leave off crying, Give, give whether a man has any thing to give or no! Such a one, though never so rich, is like a man with a numerous charge of children, with a great many hungry mouths about him to be fed, and little or nothing to feed them with. For he creates to himself a kind of new nature, by bringing himself under the power of new necessities and desires. Whereas nature, considered in itself, and as true to its own rules, is contented with little, and reason and religion enables us to take up with less, and so add to its strength by contracting its appetites and retrenching its occasions.

"You may say what you please," said Bill Muggins, speaking of a deceased comrade, "Jake was a good boy, he was, and a great hunter," continued Bill; "but he was the meanest man that ever breathed in the State; and he played one of the sharpest tricks you ever heard of, and I'll tell you how it was. I was out shootin' with him one mornin'. I tell you the duck was plenty; and other game we despised so long as we could see duck. Jake was too mean to blaze away unless he could pull down two or three at a shot. Jake often was blowin' me up for wastin' shot and powder so; but I didn't care—I blazed away. Well, somehow or other, while fussin' around the boat, my powder-flask fell overboard in about fifteen feet of water, which was as clear as good gin, and I could see the flask lay at the bottom. Jake being a good swimmer, also diver, he said he'd fetch her up, and in a minit he was in. Well, I waited quite a considerable time for him to come up; then I looked over the side for old Jake. Good Jerusalem! there sot old Jake on a pile of oyster-shells pourin' the powder out of my flask into his'n. Wasn't that mean?"

A Goat on the Rampage.—The Danbury News says: A retired clergyman sends us an account of a little affair that happened in his place. It appears that there was a young woman, a fine spirited girl, engaged at a wash tub, opposite an open door. Just behind her was a young man, as is generally the case, in the yard was an old buck that was allowed the freedom of the premises, which is not always the case, we are glad to say. Well this buck came up to the door and looked in, and the young man going close behind the young woman, pointed his finger straight at the buck, and the old fellow recognized at once the pressing character of this mute invitation, put down his head and dashed forward, and the miserable man stepped to one side and fled, and the young woman, all unconscious of the arrangements, received the awful shock without warning, and passed over the tub, and the air for an instant appeared to be full of slippers, and wet clothes, and soap, and hot water, and suds. And the next minute the goat came flying out that door at a dreadful speed, bald the whole length of his spine, and with a wild look in his eye. And for an hour afterwards he stood back of the barn, scratching his chin, and trying to recall all the circumstances in the unfortunate affair.

The Fortune Teller's Almanac.—To dream of a millstone about your neck is a sign of what you may expect if you marry an extravagant woman.

It is very lucky to dream that you pay for a thing twice over, since ever afterwards you will probably take care to have your bills receipted.

For a person in embarrassed circumstances to dream that he is arrested is very fortunate, for it is a warning to him on no account to accept a bill.

To dream of fire is a sign that—if you are wise—you will see that all the lights in your house are out before you go to bed.

To dream that your nose is red to the tip is an intimation that you had better leave brandy for water.

To dream of having a great number of servants is—madness.

To dream of a bear betokens mischief, which your vision shows you is a bruin.

When a fashionable young lady dreams of a filbert, it is a sign that her thoughts are running on the colonel.

If you dream of clothes, it is a warning not to go to law; for, by the rule of contraries, you will be sure of a nonsuit.

When a young lady dreams of a coffin, it betokens that she should instantly discontinue tight stays and always go warmly clad in wet weather.

Why do honest ducks dip their heads under water? To liquidate their little bills.

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS the article known as Old Tom Gin being a sweetened spirit, cannot be accurately tested for by strength by Syke's Hydrometer in the mode prescribed by Law for testing spirituous liquors, and it is expedient with a view to uniformity in the collection of duty thereon, that an average strength should be adopted as the rule governing entries thereof.

His Excellency, on the recommendation of the Honorable the Minister of Customs, and under the authority given by the 4th section of the Act, 31 Vic. Cap 6, intituled: "An Act respecting the Customs," has been pleased to order and it is hereby ordered, that in collecting Customs Duty on the importation of Old Tom Gin, the same be dealt with and treated as a Spirit twenty-three per cent. under proof, or containing seventy-seven per cent. of proof spirit.

EPIZOOTIC REINDEERS.

NO further cause for dread of the above disease, as the undersigned has just received from the Prisons and Workhouses of Germany, hundreds of Horses, Donkeys, Mules and Reindeers, which are not at all liable to the prevailing epidemic.

The public will, no doubt, be pleased to learn that Santa Claus has still retained CHARLES A. SAMPSON as his Agent, and has consigned to him a really novel and elegant variety of Toys, Dolls, &c., for immediate sale in this City. As some of these goods are poor, I am authorized to sell them very cheap.

Sampson's Worm Lozenges are no good unless you use them.

F'ton Nov. 13. C. A. SAMPSON.

NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE CO.,

OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

Washington, D. C.

CASH CAPITAL, $1,000.000.

Chartered by special Act of Congress.

Approved July 25, 1868.

OFFICERS.

Clarence H. Clark, Philadelphia, President.
Jay Cooke, Chairman Finance and Executive Committee.
Henry D. Cooke, Washington, } Vice Presidents
E. A. Rollins, Philadelphia, }
Emerson W. Peet, Phila., Secretary & Actuary.

That the National Life Insurance Company of the United States of America is the most popular company in this country is evinced by the fact that in the first twenty months of its existence it received about 12,000 APPLICATIONS and issued 10,000 POLICIES, a much larger number than was ever issued at the same period of its existence by any other life Insurance Company in the world.

That it is the most secure company is proven by its Capital of $1,000,000. That it is honestly, correctly, and scientifically managed is guaranteed by the character and skill of its owners and managers, who, in addition to their integrity and ability, are influenced by pecuniary interests. Its rates of premium are as low as is consistent with entire safety. Its plan is entirely free from any complications of notes, interest, &c., or uncertainties and disappointments of dividends, &c. Its contracts are definite, clear, and impossible to be misunderstood or misrepresented. Its policies contain all of the promises made by the company, and are exceedingly liberal. All the advantages and privileges which can be safely granted to the insured are given by this deservedly popular and strong company.
