The Principles and Practice of Common School Education.

BY JAMES CURRIE, A.M.,
Principal of the Church of Scotland Training School, Edinburgh; author of "The Principles and Practice of Primary and Infant School Education," etc.

THE subscribers, being desirous of placing in the hands of the Teachers of the Dominion the best work on Practical Education, requested the opinion of the Chief Superintendent of Education for this Province on the subject, who has kindly responded in the following Letter, recommending Professor Currie's valuable book. As the letter contains some judicious hints, which may be useful to Teachers, we print it entire.

Education Office, Province of New Brunswick, Fredericton, February 2nd, 1873.
Messrs. J. & A. McMillan,
Dear Sirs:—In answer to your enquiry I may say that it does not appear to me that the matter of Professional Education among our Teachers will be greatly promoted by the circulation of the numerous Treatises before the public. Some of them are good works, and some of them are not. Most of those published on this side of the water are chiefly, though not exclusively, compilations of European books, and the compilation is not always judicious. I know of no all comparable to Currie's. They are carefully and thoughtfully written. Principles are clearly defined, and practice receives, in consequence, a most intelligent and conscientious handling. The "Common School Education" is a sequel to the author's Treatise on "Early and Infant Education." These books, if carefully studied, would be of much service to intelligent Teachers of our culture, and would do much to place in their private libraries if brought under their notice. It is true that in New Brunswick we neither have nor desire to have out-and-out Infant Schools any more than we do the system of school "Organization" which obtains in Great Britain. But what is said of these subjects in Currie's books rather increases their value for the thoughtful reader in this country. Without intending to subscribe to all the views expressed in these two books, I may say that, in my judgment, they form of themselves a library of Educational Principles and methods more trustworthy than a multitude of kindred works.

I am your obedient servant,
HEDDORF H. RAND.

Woodstock, January 17, 1873.—17-3

The Imperfect Digestion and Assimilation of Food is the first step in the development of Pulmonary Consumption. This is known to the patient by the nausea and distress felt after meals—which, combined with loss of appetite, failure of strength and flesh, should be enough to cause alarm. In this state of constitutional depravity, no substance can effect so radical a change as Pure Cod Liver Oil, in combination with a Tonic such as is found in Dr. Baxter's Chalybeate. Experience has proved it to be the most effective treatment yet offered to the consumptive. The testimony of the ablest physicians of the day is corroborative of the above, and the proprietor would earnestly entreat those who are disposed to Consumption, either acquired or hereditary, to have faith and pursue a course of treatment which has done more for them than any known remedy. Dr. Baxter's Chalybeate is not a specific for Consumption, but in combination with Cod Liver Oil it will do more for them than all the nostrums of the shops.
