But our picture is life size, and partial glances see not its every feature : deep within the sad lineaments of its tell-tale visage lie the strength and weakness of our endeavor; the bountiful and meagre harvest; the rich, ripe fruit and the brown dead leaves; a record of battles lost and won; the little narrow strip of vantage ground o'er which some dislodging foe. Shall we lose it? or shall it rise in the mighty exercise of fidelity, a summit of strength and defence above which the olive shall wave and dip its peace ers? Alas, human conjecture! time will unfold; these are the signal lights along our quiet line of review.

We left you, dear SENTINEL, in August last, little knowing our point of destination. On arrival at Boston, our esteemed friend Brick Building, up stairs Mr. Ginn advised, in the words of the lamented Horace Greeley, "go West, young man, go West." This is also now the pater-
