line and Violetta Irving, deceased: BEREAVED PARENTS, - We deem it a duty to extend our heartfelt sympathy to you in your deep affliction. Having previously had the fountains of our feelings troubled by the loss of a sister, for whom we have not yet laid aside the badge of mourning, we have learned how to condole with the bereaved. We feel that while your circle is broken by the departure of those endeared by the strongest ties of parental and filial affection, ours also is severed by the same stroke of whose memories shall ever be cherished by a sympathizing Lodge. Although we cannot understand why the Almighty should thus mutually afflict us, we must resign ourselves to His will, for His wisdom is unerring and His mercy endureth forever. We rejoice that they have left to angels in the realms of Immortal Bliss.
