When You're Down. When regions of "friends" always bless us, When golden success lights our way, How they smile as they softly address us, So cordial, good-humored and gay. But O, when the sun of prosperity

Hath set—then how quickly they frown,
And cry out in tones of severity,

"Kick the man, don't you see he is down?"

What though you knew not a sorrow,

Your heart was as open as day, And your "friends," when they wanted to be You would oblige and ne'er ask ther What though not a soul you had slighted, As you wandered about through the town, Your "friends" become very near sighted,

And don't seem to see you when down.

When you're "up" you are loudly exalted, And traders all sing out your praise, When you're down you have greatly defaulted. And they really don't fancy your ways. Your style was "tip-top" when you'd money, So sings every sucker and clown, But now, 'tis exceedingly funny, Things are altered because you are down.

O give me the heart that forever Is free from the world's selfish rust, And the soul whose high noble endeavor Is to raise fallen men from the dust; And when in adversity's ocean A victim is likely to drown, All hail to the man whose devotion, Will lift up a man when he's "down."
