LAFLA IN THREE PARTS.

THE LIBRETTO BY MES. L. L. STRATTON THE MUSIC BY G W. STRATTON. PART FIRST.

A band of mountain children are collected spend the summer day in singing, gathering flowers, and feasting around their table spread be-neath the shadowy branches of the trees; they are interrupted by the approach of a Beggar Wo-man and her Children. A part of the Children at first repulse her, offended at having their joyous festival thus interrupted; but one of them, Laila. steps forth, and with a mild rebuke to her playmates for their unkindness, she welcomes the poor Mother and Children, and bids them make known Sheriff's office, in Woodstock, in the County their wants. The other Children soon join with Laila in speaking kindly to the poor wanderers, and after they have told them their tale of sorrow, they are invited to the feast which the Children and five o'clock, P. M.:

All the estate, right, title, interest, use, poshave prepared, and all together go out with a merry song to where the table is spread.

PART SECOND.

Laila. who is the tavorite of all. while straying a little from the others to gather wild flowers, becomes bewildered in the wood, and hurrying on to regain her companions only buries herself deeper and deeper in its dark recesses, until at the opening of act second she is discovered sitting, worn out with fatigue and despair on a mossy log, in the gloomy shadow of the forest.

Starting up soon, she cries. "I am lost! I am lost!" fc., hurrying at intervals this way and that, and peering into the dark glades, if perchance she may see, in some direction an opening, or listening for the voices of her playmates.

At last the thought occurs to her that an angel might easily deliver her from her unhappy dilemma, and as she kneels to ask that deliverance, a little band of fairies, led by their queen with little band of fairies, led by their queen with noiseless step, and robes glittering with beauty. glide into her presence.

Rising from her knees she b-holds them before her, and starts back in astonishment and new affright. Reassured, however, by their loveliness of appearance, and supposing them to be the angels to whom sue has been praying, she begathem to restore her to her companions. They tell her they are tairies, and seek to tempt her, by rehearsing the charms of their grotto which is hard by, to forget her triends and playmates, and go with them to fairy-land. Failing in this, they at last yield to her entreaties, and with a merry chorus lead her away.

PART THIRD.

The Mountain Children soon miss Laila, and all the atternoon they spend in fruitless search for her; and as night approaches they collect in the hours of twelve o'clock, noon, and five o'clock, p. m: All the right, title, interest, property, claim and demand, either at Law or in Equity, of Zephaniah Miller, of, in, to, er upon all that certain piece or parcel of land and premises, with all buildings and improvements. situate, lying and being in the Parish of Wicklow, County of Carleton: beginning at a Cedar post standing on the South side of the Great Road leading from Florenceville to the Boundry Line, and running a south course twelve rods, or her, and starts back in astonishment and new all the afternoon they spend in fruitless search for her; and as night approaches they collect in the grove where they first assembled, and are expressing their grief and terror at the loss of Laila, when she is led in by the Fairies and their Queen. Who steps forth and announces to the Children who steps forth and announces to the Children and their Queen. that they are the same ones who disguised a wretched beggars, came in the morning to prov. the generosity of their hearts, and tels the n nev er, in future, to hesitate to give to the needy, for virtue is sure to be rewarded. All unite in a joyous son, and Laila is crowned their Queen. (Note —The tavorite airs, "The Last Rose of Summer," "Sweet Home." and "Minuet Don in Juan," are introduced in this work.)

WHO HE IS. - By W. V. S., ARTIST.

Who keeps the gallery on King Street, Where all are welcome to a seat, And Photos too are made so neat? Why, Moores, the new Photographer. Who charms the gents and ladies fair,

With portraits made with shill so rare, That people, all, in wonder stare? Why, Moores, the best Photographer. Who understands so well to pose, That oblique eye, or trightful nose, There own netects shall not disclose? Why, Moores, the skilled Pootographer, Who can so well those spots efface,

That often freckle beauty's face, And of them leave no earthly trace? Why, Moores, the shrewd Photographer. Or gently charm the scowls away, That oft o'er certain faces stray, To the poor subjects dire dismay?
Why, Movers, the gay Photographer.

Who can so soothe the baby's cries, And change its sad and weeping eyes To orbs where mirthful laughter lies? Why, Movers, the quick Photographer. Who can so deft, with art, secure The coyish grace of miss demure, And hence a p rtrait fine assure? Why, Mooers, the charp Photographer. Or catch the merry beams that stray

O'er happy visage, l'gnt and gay,
As sunny rays in genia: May?
Why, Mooers, the seen Photographer. Who is't that ladies all adore, And sing his praises o'er and o'er, Because he adds to beauty's store? Why, Mooers, the charmed Photographer. Who makes for all. at price not high, Those portraits fine that charm the eye
Of connoisseur, or passer by?
Why, Mooers, the fine Photographer.

And still invites the people all, On him to quick and surely call For portraits large, or gems so small ? Vhy, Mooers, the live Photographer.

Or who, when eyes have fresceed been, Through some gay fellow's lively whim, Relieves them of their hue so dim? Why, Mooers, the kind Photographer.
