"When April blows his horn, It's good for hay and corn." "If it thunders on All Fools' day, It brings good crops of corn and hay. Cold, however, appears to be the most Province desirable accompaniment of rain during April, if the experience of our forefathers, embodied in various proverbs, is to count for anything:

" A cold April The barn will fill." "Cold April gives bread and wine." "It is not April without a frosty crown." "April wears a white hat."

The early part of April is often called the black-thorn winter, from the fact that the white blossoms of the thorn are then in flower, while the weather is nearly always cold. This month and May are very rightly called the keys of the year, as the weather experienced during them most materially influences

"Betwixt April and May if there be rain, Which means that a wet April is of special benefit to corn crops, a wet May to grass lands. With the exception of a local proverb there is no saying attached to any particular day in April. The proverb alluded to above is common in Huntingdon; it is to the effect that there will be a flood in June if the first three days of April are foggy. As Easter Day this year fell on the 16th of April, the proverbs connected with that day find

"A rainy Easter betokens a good harvest."
