DISEASE OF THE LIVER. The liver is much more frequently the seat of disease than is generally supposed .-The functions it is designed to perform, and in the regular execution of which depends not only the general health of the body, but the powers of the stomach, bowels, brain, and the whole nervous system, shows its vast and vital importance to human health. When the liver is seriously diseased, it in fact not only deranges the vital functions of the body, but exercises a powerful influence over the mind and its operations, which cannot be easily described. It has ao close a connection with other diseases, and manifests itself by so great a variety of symptoms of a most doubtful character, that it misleads more Physicians, even of great emin-ence, than any other vital organ. The inti-mate connection which exists between the Liver and the Brain, and the great domin-ion we are persuaded it exercises over the passions of mankind, convinces us that many unfortunate beings have committed acts of deep and criminal atrocity, or become what is termed Hypochondrias from the simple fact of a diseased state of the Liver. We have long been convinced that more than one-half of the complaints which occur in this country, are to be considered as having their seat in a diseased state of the Liver.— We will enumerate some of them: Indigestion, Stoppage of the Menses, Deranged State of the Bowels, Irritable and Vindictive Feelings and Passions from trifling and inadequate causes, of which we afterwards feel ashamed; last, though not least, more than
