Time To Me.
BY CHARLES SWAIN.
Time to me this truth hath taught,
That a truth is worth revealing;
More offend from want of thought,
Than from want of feeling.
If advice we would convey,
There's a time we should convey it;
If we but a word to say,
There's a time in which to say it.
Many a beautiful flower decays,
Though we tend it ever so much;
Something secret on it plays,
Which no human aid can touch.
So, in a loving breast,
Lies some tender grief concealed,
And of that grief we should be told,
Left unto itself—is healed!
Oh, unknowingly, the tongue
Touches on a chord so aching,
That a word, or accent wrong,
Pains the heart almost to breaking.
Many a heart of wounded pride,
Many a fault of human blindness,
Has been smothered, or turned aside,
By a quiet voice of kindness.
Time to me this truth hath taught,
That a truth is worth revealing;
More offend from want of thought,
Than from want of feeling.
If advice we would convey,
There's a time we should convey it;
If we but a word to say,
There's a time in which to say it.

Time To Me.
BY CHARLES SWAIN.
Time to me this truth hath taught,
That a truth is worth revealing;
More offend from want of thought,
Than from want of feeling.
If advice we would convey,
There's a time we should convey it;
If we but a word to say,
There's a time in which to say it.
Many a beautiful flower decays,
Though we tend it ever so much;
Something secret on it plays,
Which no human aid can touch.
So, in a loving breast,
Lies some tender grief concealed,
And of that grief we should be told,
Left unto itself—is healed!
Oh, unknowingly, the tongue
Touches on a chord so aching,
That a word, or accent wrong,
Pains the heart almost to breaking.
Many a heart of wounded pride,
Many a fault of human blindness,
Has been smothered, or turned aside,
By a quiet voice of kindness.
Time to me this truth hath taught,
That a truth is worth revealing;
More offend from want of thought,
Than from want of feeling.
If advice we would convey,
There's a time we should convey it;
If we but a word to say,
There's a time in which to say it.
