Living friendly, feeling friendly, Acting fairly to all men, Seeking to do that to others They may do to me again, Hating no man, scorning no man, Wronging none by word or deed; But forbearing, soothing, serving, Thus I live—and this my creed.

Harsh condemning, fierce contemning, Is of little Christian use, One soft word of kindly peace Is worth a torrent of abuse; Calling things bad, calling men bad Adds but darkness to their night, If thou wouldst improve thy brother, Let thy goodness be his light.

You Ask Me How I Live.

BY JOSEPH HOBBINS.

I have felt and known how bitter Human coldness makes the world, Ev'ry bosom round me frozen, Not an eye with pity pearl'd; Still my heart with kindness teeming Glads when other hearts are glad, And my eyes a tear-drop findeth At the sight of others sad. Ah! be kind-life hath no secret

For our happiness like this; Kindly hearts are seldom sad ones, Blessing ever bringeth bliss, Lend a helping hand to others, Smile though all the worldshould frown Man is man, we all are brothers, Black or white or red or brown.

Man is man through all gradations, Little recks it where he stands, How divided into nations, Scattered over many lands; Man is man by form and feature, Man by vice and virtue too, Man in all one common nature Speaks and binds us brothers true.

ARTIFICIAL BUTTER.—The Cincinnati Merchants' and Manufacturer's Bulletin introchants' and Manufacturer's Bulletin intro-duces the following account of the mode of making butter from suet or beet's fat (and perhaps other substances) with the remark that, "except, perhaps, the city girl who thought that milk was pumped from the cow by using the tail as a pump-handle, or the Broadway dandy in the country who wanted to know which was the buttermilk cow, everybody is familiar with the old-fashioned way of producing butter, an article that has come to be a necessity as well as a luxury—when it is fresh and nice.

"The article produced by the new pro-cess referred to is sometimes called artificial butter' as a mark of distinction, but the name is incorrect. It is simply butter-nothing more or less—as much so as that which is produced entirely from milk, as a brief explanation will show. It is idle to trace the chemical agents and transitions that affect the food taken into the stomach of a cow. A Pittsburg man sold his little girl for $5, the child's mother being dead.

It is enough to know that among the secretions developed during the wonderful and mysterious process of assimilating the food to the bodily wants of the animal is the article we call milk, composed of the oily substance known as stearine, oleine, palmatine, with small quantities of caproine and caprine, to South Abington, Mass., has a manufactory which its odor is due.
