CURING A TERMAGANT DISPOSITION .-I had not seen Mrs. --- for a week, and supposed her either sick or away from Catalogue sent on receipt of 6c. for post-home, when she drove up to my gate one morning with all her children in the carrithan usual, and I said, "You have been

"There it is again," exclaimed she, laughing: "everybody sees the want of oxygen in my blood." The truth is, I have been sewing steadily for a week upon the children's dresses, and have not allowed myself a breath of fresh air, which have always deemed essential to my my good nature depends entirely. At the end of three days of unbroken sedentary employment I begin always to falter, and can hardly eat or sleep; but on this occasion I held on to my work and finished article after article, till my head was in such a whirl that I could hardly count the garments as I laid them away. But yesterday I became desperate; I scolded poor Bridget for some slight mistake, she looked at me in unutterable amazement. I ordered every child out of the house, even baby Benny here, because I couldn't bear the sound of a footfall within it; and when my husband came at night and told me I looked really ill and nervous, it was the last feather that broke the camel's back-I was sure it was only a courteous way of saying I looked cross and ugly, and I burst into a fit of uncontrollable sobbing, and went to bed like a naughty child at 8 o'clock.

"This morning I locked up the unfinished pile of sewing. We have a dinner 10 Cases Hats and Caps, basket there in the carriage, and are off for the woods. The children say they are in pursuit of fun, but I am after GLASGOW HOUSE, oxygen."-Iowa State Register.

A BEAUTIFUL INCIDENT. — A poor Arab travelling in the desert met with a spring of clear, sweet, sparkling water. Used as he only was to blackish wells. such water as this appeared to his simple mind worthy of a monarch, and, filling his leathern bottle from the spring, he determined to go and present it to the Snathes, RAKES, Caliph himself. The poor man traveled a long way before he reached the presence of his sovereign, and laid the humof the water to be poured into a cup, drank it, and, thanking the Arab with a smile, ordered him to be presented with a reward. The courtiers around pressed | Paint and Varnish Brushes, Lamp Black; forward, eager to taste of this wonderful Potash and Lye in 1 lb. Cans;

After the poor Arab had quitted the royal presence with a light and joyful heart, the Caliph turned to his courtiers, and thus explained this conduct.
