see him helpless, impoverished,—the rich treasures of body and mind all lost,—in misery and despair. Remorseful Conscience holds up to him the mirror of memory. In his own reckless folly he perceives the cause of his present pain. He resolves to return. The Journey is long and tedious, but if he perseveringly follows the right road, he will at length see the haven of his hopes in the distance, and Nature, seeing her invalid.

An English nobleman, Lord Howard, has in his possession the identical death-warrant of Jesus Christ, for which he paid over $1,-100. It was discovered in the course of some excavations at the city of Aqui la, Naples, 1825.

It is estimated that the loss to Chicago by its three days' experience of the Commune amounted in gold to about $2,000,000. A distance, and Nature, seeing her invalid. pletely mapped out, its landmarks all indicated and its milestones all numbered.—

A case of rare interest to the medical profession is that of a young daughter of the Hon. William M. Corbin, of Union, Ct. On the 3rd of last September she swallowed a shawl pin, which was received in the left lung. For six weeks she experienced no trouble, but at the expiration of that time she had inflammation of the lungs. She had inflammation of the lungs. She had inflammation of the lungs. She Hartford. He advised the parents to trust to the chance of the pin being coughed uprather than have an incision made for its removal. This course was pursued. The child recovered her usual condition of health, source was pursued.

Leprosy.—This loathson considered incurable has for sir Wilfrid Lawson gener-vally agreed to give up the half-day which had been fixed for the second reading of the Permistre Bill, in order to afford another opportunity for the passage of the Iriah Sunday Closing Bill, in order to afford another opportunity for the passage of the Iriah Sunday Closing Bill. When the moment came for going in the control of the seven Iriah obstructionists, led off in a two hours' speech in opposition to the motion—Hwas followed by Mr. Roebuck and others until six o'clock, when according to Parliament the debate was closed. Backed by the beer-loring English Conservatives, the emeines of the bill had been gagin able to talk it out, as they had done once last session. It now be came evident to the Government that the Opposition was grossly abusing its Parliamentary privileges, for, as the Times remarked, it is an essential principle of Parliament that the will of the majority must be allowed to provail after the opinions and wishes of the minority have been fally heard. So about a week afterward another half day was given to the motion—for the first of the minority have been fully heard. So about a week afterward another half day was given to the matier, and the third time the bill was choked off by talking agoinst time. The Times even is becoming indignant, and warns the Ministry that they are under a moral constraint to evert their influence over their supporters and to put an end to the season? The Times even is becoming indignant, and warns the Ministry that they are under a moral constraint to exert their influence over their supporters and to put an end to the scandal. As but a few days more remain for the present session the measure must lie over until another year, but the offence offered Irish public sentiment will not so soon be forgotten. Scotland has enjoyed Sunday closing for over twenty years, and it was closing for over twenty years, and it was granted upon the demand of a mere majority of the Scottish members. Hitherto, the rule
