MAN.

Drawn out and out, and so is done.

Or like a tale that's new begun,

or like a thought, or like a dream,

Is here, now there, in life and death.

Even such is man, who lives by breath,

The bubble's out, the look's forgot

The shuttle's flung, the writings blot;

The water's glide, man's life is done.

The arrow shot, the flood soon spent,

The time no time, the web soon rent. The race soon run, the goal soon won

The dole so in dealt, man's life soon done

The lightning's past, the post must go, The song is short, the journey so,

The snow dissolves, and so must all.

Select Tale.

"The last of her?"

Or like the gliding of the stream :

The sun sets, the shadow flies,

How CAN WE KEEP THE BOYS ON THE

FARM ?-A BOY'S VIEW OF THE MATTER. The importance of the question given above is shown by the frequency with which it is discussed in this and other journals. We do not know that we have seen anything on the subject from one of the parties most interested, the boys, and we are pleased to give place to the following from "E. W.," a young man in Ulster Co., N. Y., as it shows that boys are thinking of the matter, and that at least one of them has very sensible views on the subject. He say : "It was with more than common interest that I read · How can we keep the Boys on the Farm?" by Mr. Waring. It seems to me that this question can be answered very readily, but in the first place let me say a few words as to the cause of the dislike that farmers' sons have for their fathers' occupation, and which seems to drive them into some other business. We boys (for I am one) want recrea-
