Telling A Story.

Little blue-eyes is sleepy, Come here and be rocked to sleep What shall I tell you darling? The story of little Bo Peep? Or of the cows in the garden, Or the children who ran away? If I'm to be story-teller, What shall I tell you, pray?

"Tell me"—the blue eyes opened Like pansies when they blow, "Of the baby in the manger, The little child-Christ you know. I like to hear that 'tory The best of all you tell. And my four year old nestled closer As the twilight shadows fell.

And I told my darling over The old, old tale again, Of the baby born in the manger, Ann the Christ who died for men, Of the great warm heart of Jesus, And the children whom he blest, Like the blue-eyed boy who listened As he lay upon my breast.

And I prayed, as my darling slumbered, That my child with eyes so sweet Might learn from his Saviour's lessons And sit at the Master's feet. Pray God he mag never forget it, But always love to hear

The tender and touching story That now he holds so dear. Poor GIRLS.—The poorest girls in the world are those who have never been taught to work. There are thousands of them. Rich parents have petted them; they have been taught to despise labor, and depend upon others for a living, and are perfectly helpless. If misfortune comes upon their friends, as it often does, their case is hopeless. The most forlorn and miserable women upon earth belong to this class. It belongs to parents to protect their daughters from this deplorable condition. They do them a great wrong if they neglect it. Every daughter should be taught to earn her own living. The rich as well as the poor require this training. The wheel of fortune rolls swiftly round—the rich are very likely to become poor, and the poor rich. Skill to labor is no disadvantage to the rich, and is indispensable to the poor. Wellto-do parents must educate their daughters to work; no reform is more imperative than this. UNDER THE GALLERY .- A Milwaukie clergyman who, while preaching a sermon on a recent Sunday evening, perceived a young man and woman under the gallery in the act of kissing each other behind a hymn-book, did not lose his temper. No, he remained calm. He beamed mildly at the offenders over his spectacles; and when the young man kissed her the fifteenth time, he merely broke his sermon short off in the middle of "thirdly" and offered a fervent prayer in behalf of the "young man in the pink necktie and the maiden in the blue bonnet and gray shawl, who were profaning the sanctuary by kissing one another in pew 78." And the congregation said

"Amen." Then the woman pulled her veil down, and the young man does not go to church as much now as he used to.

THOUGHT THEY HAD HIM .- The Marquis of Waterford annoys English railway managers by always riding third-class, as it diminishes their first and second-class travel. One day the Marquis appeared at Waterford station, and bought a third-class ticket to Dublin. The railway men thought to teach him a lesson, and for that purpose set a sweep down beside him in the car thinking to drive him out. The Marquis surveyed his travelling companion for a moment and then started for the ticket office.

CATARRH Cannot be cured by snuffs, washes, et local applications. It is a weakness of the constitution, developing itself in the nasal organs first, atterwards extending to the throat and lungs, ending generally in Consumption, if not checked by proper remedies. Pains in the head, back, loins, and weakness in the kidneys, are its attendant diseases. More people have Catarrh than any other disease, children as well as adults.
