Mr. giving the Americans a permission to manu-Dibblee, before leaving, passed a high complifacture for us, and drive our labor out of the country, forcing them to seek labor across rity with which he had discharged the duties the line from Brother Jonathan, and make entrusted to him, and to the parish for its us pay for it. And so long as we allow the American products to monopolize our market, and they deprive us of theirs, just so long must our laborers leave us, and help build up other countries. And the sooner politicians learn that labor is wealth, and protect it, the sooner we may expect a change for the better. But those half-andhalf way free traders will say, protection means taxation to the poor consumer, which is the labor of the country and to encourage the few who manufacture and accommodate them at the expense of the many will be to encourage smuggling, &c. A protectionist The Garleton Sentinel can show that protection would encourage manufactures and build up factories amongst us, and make a demand for labor, stimulate prosition, and make trade lively; and we become a country of export after supplying our own market. I see the Freeman is inclined to favor the farmer, so far as pork is concerned, but not willing to go the whole hog, and that is the way with our Dominion half-way policy; they are setting on the
