Slipping Away. They are slipping away-these swift, swift years, Like a leaf on the current cast;

With never a break in the rapid flow, We watch them as one by one they go Into the beautiful past. As silent and swift as a weaver's thread, Or an arrow's flying gleam; As soft as the languorous breezes hid, That lift the willow's long golden lid,

And ripple the glassy stream. As light as the breath of thistle down; As fond as a lover's dream; As pure as the flush in the sea-shell's throat, As sweet as the wood-bird's wooing note, So tender and sweet they seem.

One after another we see them pass Down the dim-lighted stairs; We hear the sound of their heavy tread, In the steps of the centuries long-since dead, As beautiful and as fair. There are only a few years left to love, Shall we waste them in idle strife?

By the dusty way of life. There are only a few swift years-ah! let Make life's fair pattern of rare design,

A series of rather unsuccessful experiments have been made in the United States in making beet sugar. Whether the want of success was due to the defective character of the saccharine matter in the beet, due to the seed or the soil, or was owing to some secret defect in the chemical processes adopted we do not know. New experiments are, however, being made in and out of Canada, and we may hope, looking at the experience of France, etc., that they will be crowned with success. The Items Foreign & Local Parliament of Canada has for years had an Act on the statute book offering a liberal exannual bonus, in order if possible to have the REV. J. G.
