We are at war with two nations already and there is every likelihood of our being at war with another before long. The young King of Burmah, who was thought to be the very personification of goodness, is by his conduct causing the Indian Government conciderable alarm. To more firmly establish siderable alarm. To more firmly establish himself upon the throne he and his advisers arrived at the conclusion that the only means by which his object could be gained was by the extermination of the whole of the King's relatives. This was done and in so horrible a manner as to make our blood run cold as we read the accounts telegraphed from Calcutta. As soon as the news of this diabolical slaughter reached the Indian Government reinforcements were despatched to Burmah. A Times Calcutta telegram says that the King is making extensive military preparations, and surrounding himself with advisers hostile to the British Government. We have not heard the last of the King of Burmah nor of our own troubles in that a manner as to make our blood run cold as Burmah, nor of our own troubles in that quarter. The marriage of his Royal Highness the Duke of Counaught and the Princess Louisa Margaret Alexandra Victoria Agnes of Prussia was celebrated in the ancient chapel of St. George Windsor, to-day. The ceremony was a most imposing one. Her Majesty the Queen was present as were also the Royal Princess and Princesses, ambassadors, cabinet ministers, peers, &c. The day has been favourable for the happy event, the sun shining the whole of the morning. May this prove a happy augury.

In the House of Commons, on Tuesday night, Sir Wilfrid Lawson introduced his Local Option Bill. Unfortunately for the member for Carlisle it met the same fate as the Permissive Bill. It was defeated. One hundred and sixty four members voted for it and two hundred and fifty two against it. During the debate Sir Wilfrid said:

During the debate Sir Wilfrid said:

About £142,000,000 worth of liquor was cousumed every year, and in 1878, that year of bad trade and bad times, of strikes and of people starving, in that very year they saw that the nation had spent, instead of less, no less than £181,000 more than before.

And stronge to say the increase was on bear. less, no less than £181,000 more than before.

And strange to say, the increase was on beer, the decrease being always on other kinds of liquor. It all came to this, that he believed Lord Aberdare was right when he said the other day, notwithstanding all that had been done during the last ten years to promote temperance, intoxication was worse now than ever it had been during the last twenty years. In proposing the resolution which he hoped would give a satisfactory method of dealing with that great evil, he ought to prove two things. First, that the statements in the resolution were true; and next, that it was desirable for the house to confirm them by a will like the increase was on beer, the increase was on beer, the decrease was on beer, the increase was on beer, the decrease was on beer, the decrease being always on other kinds of liquor. It all came to this, that he believed Lord Aberdare was right when he said the other day, notwithstanding all that had been during the last twenty years. In proposing the resolution which he hoped would give a satisfactory method of dealing with that great evil, he ought to prove two things. First, that the statements in the resolution were true; and next, that it was desirable for the house to confirm them by a desirable for the house to confirm them by a vote. He had said it was the ancient prac-tice and design of licensing that the publichouse should be licensed for the benefit of the community. If they went back, and he must go back to prove it was ancient, to the must go back to prove it was ancient, to the year 1495—that was certainly far enough back—they found the licensing system then introduced, and curiously enough it was mentioned in an act concerning vagabonds—(laughter) and it was that they should put down common ale-selling in taverns where they thought it inconvenient, and that after the 1st of May in that year none should be the 1st of May in that year none should be allowed to keep such houses except those licensed by a magistrate. He thought by that he had proved his case that it was the ancient mode to license them for the benefit of the community. (Hear, hear.) In that act of Parliament there was a power similar to that he advocated in his resolution. He wanted to give a certain power to those for whose benefit the licence was created-that they should have the power to say whether the licence should be created or not. If they had had that power, and it had been exercised during the last year or two, they would not have had the amount of distress they had had, and no one knew that better than the right hon, gentleman the Chancellor of the Exchequer. He was not deluded by all those spirit duty, and they would find that the exchequer would not suffer from the losses sustained. A sculling match took place last Monday, soon after the start, and won easily. It is announced that the shilling is to be abolished in recruiting, and a more business-like system of engagement introduced.

> RAKES! First Prize at the Provincial Exhibition, 1878.

Woodstock, Jan. 17, 1879.-3m-3

ENCOURAGE home manufacture. The best most durable, easiest worked, and cheapest Rake is made by CONNELL BROS. We are determined to make a Rake superior in every respect to any other in the market. Our facilities for manufacturing are unsurpassed, and we can sell at cheaper rates than we make three different kinds of Rakes, varying in price from $25.00 to $35.00. There is no danger of broken Axles, as we use only wrought iron of best quality. No Springs, Ratchets or Cog wheels to get out of order. Will rake on rough or smooth ground, and excels all others in simplicity, strength and and horse dump ever put upon the market.

We make RAKES to order of any width or any number of teeth required.

Beware of the cheap and poorly made American and Canadian RAKES, with cast iron axles, with which the market is being flooded.

Save your money and don't buy from any one until you see our Rakes. Send in your orders early to secure having them in season.

Our PLOW'S also took FIRET PRIZE at the Provincial Exhibition, 1878, and are too well known to need further reference. Store formerly occupied by James Phelan, as Boot and Shoe Store.
