plants from seed planted from five-eights to one and one-eight inches deep were always the most vigorous. The time for germination depends upon the mean temperature, and various other circumstances. In Haberlandt's experiments, at about 40° F., it required twenty-two days for germination; at about 50° F., the plant was equally advanced in nine days, at 60° F., in three and three-fourths days, and at 65° F., in three and three-fourths days.

There is usually one hoeing or cultivation of the field before thinning, and then cultivations after thinning. Like the corn plant, the beet plant requires frequent stirring of the soil during growth; and unless this be attended to, the farmer need not expect success. It is a maxim in Germany, that "The beet requires much hoeing," and again, "Hoeing makes sugar." Yet care must be exercised not to continue the hoeing too late in the season. The beet plant usually makes leaves before it makes much root, and the leaves elaborate the carbonic acid from the atmosphere, form product, and store the product in the root. Hence there are two stages of growth to be observed—the first that of leaf growth the second that of root growth. During the first stage, frequent cultivation is very beneficial; but when the leaves are formed, then all cultivation should at once stop.

In lifting the beets at harvest, a spade is used to loosen the earth and pry up the root, which is then freed from earth by knocking two roots together, and then thrown into a pile, the leaves having been first cut off by a strong blow with a long knife. The piles are then immediately covered with leaves for protection from the sun, and to prevent the drying effect of wind, so that the beets may not become wilted, which is prejudicial to their value to the manufacturer, as well as diminishing in weight for the grower, who sells by the ton, and is therefore equally interested in preventing evaporation from taking place. Machinery has also been used for the digging, and its action is well spoken of.

When the pulp from the factory is returned to the soil, through the feeding to cattle and using the dung, the beet crop is not very exhausting; and a competent authority, T. T. Fuhling, asserts that the substances restored to the soil by the manure resulting from the feeding of 2,300 pounds of hay, together with the refuse or pulp, is sufficient to restore the fertility which the average crop has removed, thus:

| | Nitrogen. | Phosphoric acid. | Potass. |
|---|---|---|---|
| | lbs. | lbs. | lbs. |
| Substances abstracted by a full sugar-beet crop..... | 36.4 | 15.8 | 96.4 |
| Substances returned in the manure from the pulp..... | 19.8 | 9.5 | 19.0 |
| Substances returned in 2,300 lbs. of hay fed out..... | 32.0 | 4 8 | 33.2 |

An examination of this table shows that a supply of phosphoric acid and potash is indicated, and that, under circumstances of abundant manure, a supply of phosphoric acid in the form of a superphosphate would be beneficial. Indeed, experience shows that a superphosphate in the drill should generally be used, not only to hasten the early growth of the plant, so as to push it ahead of dangers incident to the young state, but it also acts specifically in increasing the fibrous roots of the plant, and thus renders it better fitted to feed upon the plant food in the land.

The teachings of those who have written on beet culture seem to furnish the following rules:—

1. Use stubble land.
2. Use land of deep and permeable soil.
3. Plough in the manure deeply, and harrow thoroughly.
4. Use artificial fertilizes in the drill.
5. Plant thickly, and as early as possible.
6. Cultivate intensively, i. e, frequently and thoroughly.
7. Harvest as late as the season will allow.
8. Prevent the roots from wilting after they are pulled.
9. Market as early as possible after lifting.

A Cornish miner was recently found dead in a mine, and was duly buried. A neighbor of the deceased the next night dreamed that a gentleman in a carriage and pair had driven up to the house of the mother of the deceased, and said her son was not dead, but had been buried alive. This dream being noised abroad, the next night seven or eight men went to the graveyard, dug up the coffin, and carried it to a chapel. They unscrewed the coffin-lids, and there was the body of their comrade apparently still living and breathing. So convinced were they of this that they sat him up, and while some attempted to revive him by stimulants and friction, others ran off to the nearest surgeon, two miles distant. The surgeon arrived, and examined the body amid great excitement, and then stated that the man was dead, and had been dead some days.

TRIED TO MURDER HIS WIFE.

LeRoy Cortright, of Spencer, awoke his wife Friday morning and told her the Lord had commanded him to kill her. Mrs. Cortright had sufficient presence of mind to make no demur, but got permission to go down stairs and see her sick mother before being slaughtered, and once down, she scooted for the nearest neighbors, nimbly pursued by her husband. Assistance was procured, and after a severe tussel, Mr. Cortright was secured and placed in durance. He had become suddenly insane from scrofulous catarrh, and is supposed to be incurable. Though we are certain that a faithful use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy would affect a speedy cure. For many years these remedies have been acknowledged as positive specifics for all scrofulous and catarrhal affections.

CASTLE ST., ST. JOHN N. B., January 1, 1873.
Messrs. T. GRAHAM & SON.

About four years ago I got my ankle badly sprained, causing it to swell so much that I could not put on my boot, the pain being so severe that I could scarcely move about for two weeks. I used different popular remedies without benefit till I tried GRAHAM'S PAIN ERADICATOR, which cured me by a few applications.

I recommended it to a friend who had suffered from a sprain for more than six months and he was cured by less than a bottle.

I have used it in other forms of pain with equal success, and for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throats etc., it is the best remedy I have ever known.

EXTRACTS FROM A LETTER FROM C. H. S. CRONKHITE, ESQ.
CANTERBURY STATION, York Co., N. B., October 10th, 1876.

MR. J. H. ROBINSON:

DEAR SIR:—In reply to your letter of enquiry, I would say that your Phosphorized Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Lacto-Phosphate of Lime is the best preparation of the kind I have ever seen or taken.

I was ordered by my physician to take it, and commenced about the last of August, and since that time I have felt a different man, and also look differently, and all for the better, as the doctor can testify.

I was unable, in the summer, to walk any distance without much fatigue. I can now take my gun and travel all day and feel first-rate at night, and eat as much as any lumber man. Have not coughed any since I took your preparation and can now inflate my lungs without feeling any soreness, and I think I can inflate them up to full measurement same as before I was sick; have also gained in flesh, my weight in the summer was 173 lbs., and now it is nearly 190 lbs., which is pretty well up to my former weight.

The foregoing is a correct statement which I am prepared to swear to, and I hereby authorize you to give it publicity in my name.

I am, dear sir, yours teuly,
(Signed) C. H. S. CRONKHITE.

We, the undersigned, hereby consent to have our names published as witnesses to the effects of Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion on the person of Mr. Cronkhite, and do assert that the foregoing statement is correct in every particular.

HONOR FROM EUROPE.—It is conceded on all sides that Dr. Ayer's Pills are above comparison with other medicines. Uniting the best elements known to the chemist they are particularly effective against the numerous stomachic disorders for which they are recommended as a cure. These Pills are so mild, yet searching, that they are often prescribed by doctors who otherwise do not favor patent medicines. Indeed, with the fruits of Dr. Ayer's genius in the shape of Pills, Sarsaparilla, Ague Cure and Cherry Pectoral, one might with impunity travel through the swamps of tropical America, or follow Stanley on his travels through the interior of Africa.—Amsterdam Nieuws van den Day.
