Temperance Column.

This column, by special arrangement is under the control of the Executive of the Grand Lodge, I.O.G.T., of New Brunswick. All notices in it may be regarded by the Lodges and Deputies as official.

OFFICIAL NOTICE.—All communications relating to Constitutional questions, must be addressed to James Watts, G. W. C. T., Woodstock, N. B.

All Remittances, Orders and Returns, must be addressed to A. W. D. Knapp, G. W. S., Sackville, Westmorland Co., N. B.

A. W. D. KNAPP,
G. W. Secretary.

THERE has been lately, in some Provincial papers, talk about the vast number of existing societies. To those who spend their evenings at home and worry along without being members of several close organizations it is sometimes a wonder how so many are sustained and whence their necessity. However the thought is revived, rather than suggested, whether the temperance field is not occupied by too many distinct organizations of the close order, and whether, if the efforts made, honestly and earnestly, in each were more unified, greater and earlier success would not be reached. Attempts have been made to secure such a consolidation, but with very partial results. It would appear as if the grand purpose might outweigh all minor considerations such as individual preference for a particular form of organization. A favorite motto of all temperance societies is "union is strength," and still to the outside observer who only looks at the long list of distinguished titles, it would seem that the strength of temperance work is sought for in division. Each Order has some special recommendation and if happily out of all could come one all-embracing union of men and women, with a system combining the excellencies of each existing Order, would not the work intended be done quicker, better, more substantially? Is the matter worthy of thought and discussion.

There is one fact to be remembered that the success of the close organizations, and the revival and firm establishment in society of our principles, depends upon the inspiration that is evoked in open meetings.

Let it be remembered now, when winter approaches, and its long evenings, that from the public platform must be dispensed to the miscellaneous audience the truths through which men are converted from intemperance; the logic and the eloquence through which the zeal for temperance is kindled that runs like living fire through communities. "To the work, to the work," all who can work in the cause. From the pulpit, in the Sabbath schools, and as well in weekly public meetings, let the usual winter work be commenced and that too, with a fervency of design, a determination of spirit, that shall make this a winter of triumph for the cause of total abstinence.

Space in this column may not be better used than in reproducing portions of a debate that occurred in the Synod of the Episcopal Church, recently held in Montreal. It indicates the tendency of thought on the temperance question, shows how some Christian ministers still fail to comprehend its importance, and affords, in the result reached, much of satisfaction.

Mr. Thomas White M. P. moved "That this Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Canada, recognizes with gratitude the marked success of the Church of England Temperance Society in England, and while rejoicing at the increase of total abstinence societies in connection with the Church in that country commends the movement to the cordial support of the clergy and laity through out the Province."

Rev. Canon Carmichael seconded the resolution and said he would give evidence of the success of the different bodies which they were asked to congratulate themselves upon. First the Church of England Temperance Society in England and its various branches in other countries had taken its stand of late amongst the most prominent institutions in connection with the Church. It had as the basis of its work two distinct pledges—those who promised to aid the cause of temperance in every way they could without absolutely pledging themselves to abstinence, and those who took the total abstinence pledge. The former pledge had been very widely accepted throughout the whole English Church in the mother country. If it were asked how the institution worked in England the best way to prove its success would be for any gentleman who came to this country some twenty years ago to throw back his mind to the time preceding, and consider what the relations of the Church of England to the temperance movement were then. As far as his knowledge went, at that time the Church of England literally did nothing to to aid in any recognized way the cause of total abstinence or temperance, but now she had literally taken the banner out of the hands of those who had in years past been foremost in the cause, and she stood at this moment with her bishops and clergy at the head in the advocacy of the cause, so that now there was scarcely a parish that was actively worked where there was not a branch of the Temperance Society. The amount of good done by the total abstinence movement in the city of Hamilton had gone beyond his most sanguine expectation, and the warmest prayers of his heart. (Hear. Hear.) He could pledge his word as a priest of God that never did he work so well, never was he more useful at the sick bed or in the homes of the poor, as since he gave his hand to this work, and he was sure that whoever joined in it would never regret it to his dying day, would bless God that he had embarked in it. (Applause.)

Rev. Canon Baldwin held that there was only one intelligible position, especially for the clergy, in the matter of strong drink. That was total abstinence. (Cries of No, no). People inclined to drink could say in excuse for their conduct that they could not be far wrong when they followed their ministers' example. He hoped the motion would be adopted.

Mr. Imlach thought that the failure of the temperance movement was because there was no religious basis in it, and every one confided in his own instead of Divine strength. He would support moderate, but would oppose fanatical measures. He believed that the Church of England Temperance Societies would have a tendency to reduce the evils of drink, and therefore be supported the resolution.

Rev. Dr. Sullivan supported the resolution, remarking that if it were carried the cause of temperance would receive an impetus it had not hitherto had in this country.

Mr. W. Schofield opposed the resolution on the ground that it assumed that all temperance work must be society work, and all temperance workers society workers, and moved, seconded by Canon Partridge, in amendment to the last clause of the resolution, "And commends every wise and judicious method of promoting temperance to the cordial support of the clergy and laity throughout the Province."

Judge Hemming thought every man who voted for the resolution ought to be a total abstainer. (No. no.) Could anyone rejoice in the success of total abstinence and not to be so? He should consider were he to vote for the resolution that it was his duty to become a total abstainer, and thought there were a great many other evils they ought to condemn just as much as drunkenness. He did not believe the only thing necessary to regenerate the world was total abstinence from strong drink.

Rev. Dr. Bowman moved in amendment, "That this Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Canada, recognizing with gratitude the marked success of the Church of England Temperance Society in England, commends this movement and every wise and judicious method for the suppresion of intemperance, to the cordial support of the clergy and laity of the Province."

Chief Justic Allen seconded this on the ground that, not being a total abstainer, he did not feel justified in supporting the original resolution.

Upon a division being taken the resolution, with the addition of the words proposed by Canon Lobley, was carried.

HAY PRESSES!

THE undersigned having greatly improved the Railroad and Lever Hay Press, is now prepared to receive orders, which will be filled promptly and the press built in a thorough manner. We warrant every press. Our largest size has a pressure of 90 tons, and can be worked by a small horse. The size of the box is 45 inches long, 21 inches wide, and the follower raises to within 21 inches of the cover, giving a bale averaging 300 lbs., in the smallest and most desirable shape for shipment. Our iron work is done by Messrs. Connell Brothers of this town, and is of the very best. Call and see one now ready for sale.
E. M. BOYER.
We the undersigned, having purchased and used the above presses, can recommend them.
