There are a variety of articles highly meritorious and unusually in- teresting; stories, sketches, etc., by Etta W. Pierce, Eleanor Grantham, Elward Grey Frank Leslie and other popular writers. There are poems by Bret Harte, G. A. Davis, A. Alphonso Dayton, etc. There is, in fact, an abundance of good things which will prove to the reader a source of the highest gratification, entertainment and instruction. The number contains 128 quarto pages of first-class literature and about 100 illustrations admirably executed, together with a handsome colored frontispiece "Happy Days." The price of a single copy is only 25 cents; the annual subscription, $3; six months $1 50. Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York. territorial revenues are received by the D minion Government, while those provinces, above referred to, are still in their possession and this being the case it surely cannot be disputed that s me acko wledgment of this inequality should be made in the adjustment of the various Provincial subsidies That we wish to convey to Your Excellency that the propile of Nova Scotta, as represent ed by us, are strongly of opinion that the pro- po tion of the Halfax award made in con- sideration of the concession of privileges in the Nova Scotta waters should be added to the revenue of this Province. That if this opinion he disputed it must, at least, he ad mitted that if this amount is to be gained by the Dominion, and so lost to this Province, s very strong reason is furnished why some other measure should be devised to relieve her from financial d fliculties, which, under other circumstances, the award would have removed. That we are of opinion that such proportion of the award as was paid for the privilege of using the shores of this Province for the pur- pose of drying nets and curing fish, and other wise participating in the fisheries of Nova Souta, is clearly due to this Province, and should be at once ascertained and paid over	rcely trad- duits rant of assessment ordered for $7,200. There are poems by Bret Harte, G. A. Davis, A. Alphonso Dayton, etc. There is, in fact, an abundance of good things which will prove to the reader a source of the bighest gratification, entertainment and instruction. LITERARY NOTICES — Blackwood's Magazine for March, promptly republished by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co, 41 Barclay, St., besides the continuation of the capital serials now running through its pages, offers two articles which every one on taking up the number will be likely to turn to at once. Perhaps the title of one of them "An American Statesman on Irish Atrocitiee," will secure its immediate perusal; and the read- er will undoubtedly be amused at this semi-seri- ous attempt to institute a parallel between Great Britain and Ireland and Turkey and her territo- ries—in both cases an alien race being camped	train, crowded to overflowing with passeng- rs, went out on the south Park Railway, bearing men up the famous Canon, where, instead of Bananzas, disappointment awaited them. The writer saw numbereds of men- start joyfully for the scene of action, and in two or three weeks, the same men, with downcast look and sorrowful step, came wa k- ing down the same railway track, packing their blankets back to Denver, "busted." Your correspondent, above alluded to, says he thinks there must be 10,000 mechanics working here all this scason. This is not so, he tbinks wrong; if there are half that many mechanics in Denver, that number (5,000) is a liberal estimate and many of them are out of employment, and unable to get any work. If the writer was not a mechanic himself, perhaps he would not be so positive in his assertions. Leadville is situated on an elevated plain or plateau, about 10,400 feet above sen level being completely surrounded by snow capped mountains; is about 170 miles south-west of Denver, by way of the Denver South Park & Pacific Railway to Buena Vista, and thence about 35 miles by stage to the great metropolis. It has not as many inhabitants as Denver; perhaps there are from 25,000 to 30,000 people there, thousands of whom are continually coming and going. At the pre-	revenue. The estimated revenue was $100,- (00. In the report the deficiency as compared with that of the previous year is attribued principally to the continued depression of the lumber trade. The falling off chiefly occurs in the net amount collected from stumpage. We are glad to learn that within the past few months a change for the better has taken place, and the prospects of a great revival in this industry has been received with gratify- ing intelligence by our people. The land sales are slightly in excess of last year, as also miscellaneous receipts. These latter are increased by sales of mining licenses. Under all other beads of receipts there has been more or less a slight falling off. The renewals of license were considerably less than those of last year. The decrease under the several heads is attributed to the string- ency of the money market, as also the small demand for New Brunswick's staple product. The total number of new square miles sold was 107, realizing $856.
