solemn voice one hundred feet below us making the whole structure and even the very rocks tremble, we looked up and saw the bright sentinel stars above us and thought perhaps in the long ago they had been silent spectators of the awful scene that tradition tells was once enacted here.

An Indian girl of the Milicetes was taken prisoner by the Mohawks, who had killed her father and brothers. Her captors planned a night descent upon her tribe and she was directed to baild a fire on the rock below the Falls, and then as a guarantee of her good faith led the advancing canoes. Straight for the light she steered. Classly the warriers followed. Thus over the Falls the

MR. EDITOR,-To Temperance men your paper is an ever welcome visitor, as it has given no uncertain sound as a Temperance Journal, and through it the minds of the Carleton people bave been imbued with strong arguments in favor of total abstinence from all that intoxicates. The influence of the press is mighty, for good or evil; and many moral reforms have been held in abernce because of their not receiving from the press an earlier and stronger support. The City of St. John was supposed to be the hub around which revolved not only the trade and commerce of the Province, but also the elements of morality and refinement which as a great centre should be eliminated there-
