There has rarely occurred an event that evoked so unanimous an expression of sympathetic feeling as has the death of President Garfield.

The people of the United States should be deeply, faithfully moved over the death of such a man and Chief Magistrate dying under such circumstances, but a feature of this case is that the people of the States are scarcely more affected, so far as public expression gives indications of feeling, than the people and rulers of Great Britain, Canada and even France.

Words cannot express the sympathy I feel with you. May God prosper and comfort you as he alone can. (Signed) This Quaker.

If there was wanting any link in the chain of sympathy and practical regard between the two great nations that link has been supplied by the words and acts of Britain and Canada on the occasion. May nothing ever occur to weaken the influence which is becoming year by year a stronger tie of blood and kin.

The immediate effect of the President's death has been happily to invoke a unanimity of feeling, a unanimity of sentiment, and of all parties in the United States. For the time, it would seem, political differences and bitterness are buried in his grave.

The Galveston, Texas, news says:—In his death, mournful as it is, the sections will evince a common sympathy that may cement more closely the bonds of friendship so essential to the keeping of the compact between the States; North, South, East and West will join in a grief over the death of the President, a grief that the current of the national life flow as strongly as they ever did in the history of the union.

Not for naught has the country suffered if through this suffering is coming a higher plane of politics than the arena of rings and corrupt office seekers. Happy will it be if not only the United States but the nations beyond, learn a useful lesson from this event, and take to heart the fact that in wise laws wisely administered, not in that license which under the name of liberty subverts all healthy rule, and disregards the needs of the human life, depends the general and individual good. It is time the world would see that the selfishness of individuals and of cliques that would fatten even on national disaster should be trampled upon by a loyal public opinion.

A SHOCKING DEATH.—A poor old woman named Mary McCallery, some 70 years of age, met with a fearful fate on Monday morning. The deceased lived in a small house on the corner of the street and the bridge owned by Mr. Nugent. She was being supported by the St. Vincent de Paul Society, supplemented by a weekly allowance from the Poor Commissioners. For some time past Mrs. McCallery had shown weakness of mind, and it was only on Sunday evening that the members of the St. Vincent de Paul Society had determined to assist upon her removal to the Almshouse in order that she might be properly cared for; it was little thought then that within a few hours earthy care would be useless. Shortly after midnight on Sunday, the occupants of the other portion of the house in which the deceased lived, heard Mrs. McCallery uttering tones of distress, and proceeded at once to her room, but found the window and door so barred that entrance could not be gained until the window was smashed in. The poor unfortunate woman was lying on the floor near the door with her body burned off, with the exception of the part round the neck and wrists which was still burning. The burning clothing was torn from her and she placed on the bed and physicians sent for, who, however, could render no assistance, and in a couple of hours from her agonies. Her body from her death merited respect, and the poor woman should be buried with the respect due to a body that had been burned to a crisp and presented a most revolting appearance. The deceased was in the habit of smoking and it is supposed that in attempting to light her pipe the fire was caused.

It is a most unfortunate thing that deceased had not, some time since, been taken to the Almshouse, where she would have been properly cared for, and which is the proper place for all such unfortunate creatures of charity.

The Carleton and Victoria County Baptist Quarterly meeting convened with the church at Union Corner, Richmond, beginning Saturday, 24th inst., at 10 o'clock. A. M. members were present from the following churches:—Holliston and Richmond; Richmond; Woodstock; Middle Simonds; Rockland; Andover and Lower Woodstock.

Officers for the ensuing year were chosen, as follows:—President, Mr. Thos. Brooks; Vice-President, Rev. C. Henderson; Sec. Tress, Rev. G. N. Ballentine.

The question which came up for discussion at Middle Simonds, at the June meeting, relative to the expediency of changing the time of holding the Quarterly meeting, so as to allow pastors to be with their own churches on the Sabbath, was again discussed and laid over for further discussion and final decision, at the next meeting in Jacksonville.

An interesting Conference was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the close of which further business was transacted. The evening session, given to mission matters, opened with a sermon by Rev. S. Burr, followed by Revs. A. H. Hayward, G. N. Ballentine and George Howard.

Rev. A. H. Hayward preached the Quarterly meeting sermon at 8 p. m., and Rev. Thos. Brooks at 7 p. m.

The next Quarterly meeting will be held at Jacksonville, Dec. 30th.

Vice Presidents placed by accident in the President's Chair of the United States have not in the past been always a success. As Mr. Arthur must constitutionally name his own cabinet in doing so he will doubtless cause some irritations, but the hope is strong that he will satisfy the country. A contemporary says:—

The President, General Arthur, is by no means unworthy of the position and he has been called to it with a high regard for the country. He has been called to the position, and he has been called to it with a high regard for the country. He has been called to the position, and he has been called to it with a high regard for the country.

The following is the inaugural address of President Arthur. It sounds well, and appears to have given satisfaction to the American press and people:—

For the fourth time in the history of the Republic the Chief Magistrate has been called to the office of President of the United States. All hearts are filled with grief and horror at the hideous crime which has darkened our land, and the memory of the murdered President and his noble wife is a constant reminder of the duty which we owe to the country.

The President, General Arthur, is by no means unworthy of the position and he has been called to it with a high regard for the country. He has been called to the position, and he has been called to it with a high regard for the country.
