Miscellaneous.

A MAN IN A MILLINERY STORE.—She had mildly hinted that she didn t care to go to church again until she had her summer bonnet, but at the mention of bonnet he turned around and belched out:—

'Bonnet! 'Nother new bonnet! Why don't you go down and buy out every infernal bonnet foundry on Woodward avenue and be done with it!'

'I haven't had but one this spring,' she meekly protested.

'One! Why, you've had forty?'

'Only one, my dear, and I can show you the bill.'

'Well, that cost forty or fifty dollars.'

'Oh, no. The bill is only nineteen dollars.'

'Nineteen dollars! Well, that's an outrageous swindle!'

'It is a very plain bonnet,' she remarked, 'and it was only for spring.'

'How much will a summer hat cost?' he asked after reading down to the end of a column.

'Well, I'll try to get along with ten or twelve dollars, but you—'

'Ten or twelve demons!' he yelled as he half-rose up. 'I tell you it is an outrageous swindle, and no one but an idiot would submit! They tack the price on because they think you don't know bran from broom-sticks!'

'Then you go down with me for the purchase.'

'Egad' I will! I'll go this very day, and if I don't buy a better bonnet for $4 than you have ever had for $10 I'll eat shingles!'

That afternoon they entered a millinery store in company, and the old gent had the look of a man who was bound to win if he broke a leg.

'My wife wants a bonnet,' he began as he got settled down on a stool.

'Very well. About what price.'

'Say from $4 to $6.'

'Yes, sir. Here is one for $4. It is for a kitchen girl on Sixteenth street, and I call it an elegant thing for the money.'

'I—I guess we don't want one for four dollars,' he muttered, as a chill flew up his spine.

'It's very cheap, I assure you, and the colors are very popular with kitchen girls, but here is one for six dollars.'

'Ah! that is more like it! Now I call that handsome.'

'So it is sir. That is for a second girl on Winter street, and she certainly has good taste. It is the cheapest bonnet I have made for a year.'

'Yes—ahem—no doubt!' gasped the old gent as red streaks began to color his neck and chin. 'And what's the price of this one?'

'That? That is sold to a barber's wife for $8, but I could get you up the mate to it if you want it.'

'Barber's wife—ahem—eight dollars—and this one?'

'Well, I made the price very low on that one, as it is for a seamstress who always buys of me. I only charged her $12 for that.'

'Seamstress, eh!'

'Yes. She goes out for seventy-five cents per day, and of course she can't afford any better than this.'

Old Whetstone was as red as a strawberry by this, and it was only by a tremendous effort of will that he could repress a 'gosh darn it!'

'You wouldn't care to look at this $16 bonnet, as it is for a mechanic's wife,' softly remarked the milliner.

'No—ahem—perhaps not,' he grunted.

'But this one at $20 might possibly do,' she went on, 'although your wife's position in society would only permit her to wear it for second best. Just wait and I'll show you something for $25 which will charm you.'

'I won't! I'll be hanged if I wait a minute!' he exclaimed as he rose up. 'I don't feel very well, and I also agreed to meet a man at the City Hall at 3 o'clock. Martha, you go ahead and pick out a bonnet.'

'One for—for—for four dollars,' she whispered.

'Four be-hangs! Who said anything about four dollars? If you can make one for $20 do you, I'd take it; but if you look better in one for $25, you can have it sent up. What I was scolding about this morning was the shape of your bonnet—not the cost. I still hold that the shapes are outrageous; but you've got to have one all the same.'

And when he got out doors and around the corner, he struck the air with his cane and yelled:

'If a man had played that on me, I'd hunt him to his narrow grave!'—Detroit Free Press.

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ring-worm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions, promotes energy and strength, restores and preserves health, and infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial.

It is folly to experiment with the numerous low-priced mixtures, of cheap materials, and without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been widely used for forty years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.

MANHOOD

How Lost, How Restored!

We have recently published a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses. Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practise, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

SUBSTITUTES!

☞ The public are cautioned against a custom which is growing quite common of late among a certain class of medicine dealers, and which is this: When asked for a bottle of Pain-Killer, they suddenly discover that they are "sold out," "but have another article just as good, if not better," which they will supply at the same price. The object of this deception is transparent. These substitutes are made up to sell on the great reputation of the Pain-Killer; and being compounded of the vilest and cheapest drugs, are bought by the dealer at about half what he pays for the genuine Pain-Killer, which enables him therefore to realize a few cents more profit per bottle upon the imitation article than he can on the genuine.
