The following may be of interest to our horse breeders. It affords light as to the kind of horses in demand in Europe and their value :-The European demand is largely for matched carriage horses. They command high prices. Speed is not required. Such horses, on the contrary, must display a deal of action, the object being to secure a handsome, showy turnout. A height of 16 to 161 hands, erect carriage; a well-knit frame, neck well arched; a small-formed head, with an abundance of high action in front, united to a docile disposition, are qualities and elenents which are sure to command high prices either in London, Berlin or Paris. A pair of fine carriage horses, well matched, frequently brings $2,000 and upwards, and sometimes even as high as $5,000. The game, therefore, is well worth playing for. Saddle horses need not be so tall, 15 to 151 hands being regarded as ample, but the same general features as to build and appearances are essential. And right here we come to pose, it must be borne in mind that a cavalry A candy-eating horse is the property of Dr Pratt of Albany, New York.
