Look out for advertisement of McFarlane's great gift enterprise ending Saturday.
Parties who desire to vote at town election will have to pay their taxes by Saturday, 18th inst., and don't you forget it.

Dr. Sprague, from Queen's County, reached here on Thursday evening, en route to Hamilton, where he intends to locate for the practice of his profession.

Six new milk cows wanted at Seaborn's eating and oyster house, for which a good price will be paid.

The granary of Mr. Richard Kane, at Deboe, was burning Thursday morning, together with the contents, including 50 barrels of wheat and two pigs. Loss about $400; no insurance; origin of fire unknown.

ANOTHER NEW YORK HORROR.—New York, Jan. 21.—A fire, which for swiftness and destructive power, is unparalleled in the history of New York, broke out shortly after ten this morning in the old World building, at the corner of Park row and Beekman street.

A few minutes a sheet of flame shot up to the roof of the building, and the centre structure, with its crowded offices and busy throng of men and women, was wrapped in flames. The unfortunate people who occupied offices in this building were suddenly in its most awful form. There was witnessed the most awful spectacle of poor working girls, sinking back in an ocean of flame, and men and women lapsing in frantic terror from the upper windows only to meet the death they tried to avoid. Horror-stricken firemen and spectators crowded for a moment to be paralyzed by the frightful scenes that occurred, and the work of destruction went on with amazing rapidity. Narrow escapes and deeds of heroism were numerous.

It is not yet known and, perhaps, will not be known for some days, how many perished in the fire. Reports place the loss of life at the way from five to fifty. The amount of property destroyed is estimated at over one million of dollars.

The building was an old structure of five stories, and was owned by Orlando B. Potter, president of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. It is supposed that the conflagration originated in the engine room, and the flames shot up swiftly through the elevator passage. The property was heavily insured.

The building was five stories high, with basement and sub-basement and three fronts on Park row and Nassau and Beekman streets were of brown stone. On the ground floor there were four stores. The second floor was occupied by Pettigill & Co., advertising agents, and the Princeton Review office. On the third floor there were several law offices and the business and editorial rooms of the New York Observer and Scientific American. The fourth floor contained the editorial, business offices and the composing room of the Scottish American Journal, and a number of smaller offices. The fifth floor was formerly occupied by the editorial offices and composing room of the World newspaper, and the composing room of the Observer and an art studio. In the centre of the building there was a large light well.

THERE WAS BUT ONE STAIRWAY from the fourth to the fifth floor, but from the fourth floor to the ground there were two stairways, one leading out to Park row and the other to Nassau street. Between two and three hundred persons of both sexes were employed in the building. Fires have started in the building twice before, but have been extinguished with slight loss. The New York Times office, which is built of Nova Scotia sandstone, occupies the remainder of the block in which the Potter building stood.

The question has been raised in the United States as to whether the constitution gives Congress the right to tax imports in order to pay bounties to manufacturers, or in other words, to make a protective tariff. The constitution says that Congress shall have "the power to regulate commerce," but gives it power to tax imports only in order to pay debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare. Advocates of free trade argue, therefore, that the tariff which is now unnecessarily very high, for the purpose of raising revenue for these purposes is unconstitutional, and that the virtual granting of bounties to manufacturers is illegal. Their opinion seems to have been confirmed by a decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Tupac, Kansas, that it was illegal to tax citizens for the purpose of "encouraging manufacturers" or in other words, "granting bounties to manufacturers." The decision was given on the broad ground that the individual had rights which were beyond the control of the State. Said one of the judges, "To bring with one hand the power of the Government on the property of the citizen and with the other to bestow upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less robbery, because it is done under the form of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms. Nor is it taxation. Beyond a tariff there can be no law which is not paid for a public purpose." There can be no doubt that if protective legislation were to be on the principles enunciated by a judge of the Supreme Court of the United States that it would have to be pronounced illegal. Their inherent justice cannot for a moment be denied.—Witness.

The Mormon fight in Congress has assumed a somewhat novel shape, and your correspondent learns that for months Delegate Cannon has been quietly collecting evidence of peculiar acts on the part of members, views to houses of ill repute, &c., and such other facts as will tend to choke off aggression at once on the part of some of the anti-Mormon Representatives. As may be imagined, this has caused considerable concern in certain quarters, but it is not likely that such a species of blackmailing and bulldozing will amount to much. Both branches of Congress are determined to settle this question, and Mr. Cannon will find some very heavy guns trained on his fortifications before the session closes. This discovery that detectives have been shadowing members has served to increase the bitterness towards the "Latter Day Saints," and the subject will receive some red-hot shot when it comes up for consideration.—Traveler.

MUCH TRUTH IN A SMALL COMPASS.—We are a free people, a great people, an enterprising people; but it must be admitted, also, that we are a Dyspeptic People. Our stomachs are by no means as sound as our political constitution; and many of us, if addressed in the language of a doctor, would say:—
"Let good digestion wait on appetite, and health on both!"

would anxiously inquire by what means the wish could be realized. That question, though, to Thomas Holloway, can be triumphantly answered. The unequalled stomachic known throughout the world as Holloway's Pills, is literally a specific for the complaint. Its perfect digestion results from a dilute condition of the gastric juice—the fluid which dissolves the food in the stomach, and fits it for application to the purposes of life in the form of blood. If the organ which secretes this solvent is in a state of morbid irritation, the fluid will be deficient in quality and quantity, and its appointed office in the internal economy of the system will be inefficiently performed. The stomach being diseased, the whole vital machinery to which it furnishes sustenance and strength will be weakened, and the animal spirit, sympathy with the bodily debility, will become greatly depressed. This is Dyspepsia; and its victims, when it has assumed the chronic form, are the most miserable of mankind. It is generally accompanied by loss of appetite, indigestion, oppression after eating, irregularity of the bowels, low nervous force, great debility, palpitation of the heart, broken sleep, pain in the right side and between the shoulders, and profound melancholy. All these symptoms, and every other that is a manifestation of this distressing malady, are rapidly removed by a course of Holloway's Pills. Putting the testimony of others out of the question, we have full warrant from personal observation for this broad and positive statement.

It is not to be marvelled at, when Dr. Holloway has acquired such universal fame. In those trances upon a man who is distinguished by the speed, simplicity and certainty of his cures, we wish to discharge a duty which we owe, or, thought we owed, to the public. It is for them to set upon our suggestion as they think fit.—Washington Intelligence.

REMARK.—For persons suffering from exhaustion of the powers of the brain and nervous system, from long and continued study, or teaching, or in those cases of exhaustion from which many young men suffer, know of no better medicine for restoration to health than Holloway's Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

Woodstock, Jan. 28, 1882.
I HEREBY desire to tender my sincere thanks to my friends who so kindly removed my furniture, clothing, etc., from the fire January 27, 1882; also to the Union Protection Co. for so carefully protecting and assisting in removing to place of safety afterward.

THE MORMON FIGHT IN CONGRESS has assumed a somewhat novel shape, and your correspondent learns that for months Delegate Cannon has been quietly collecting evidence of peculiar acts on the part of members, views to houses of ill repute, &c., and such other facts as will tend to choke off aggression at once on the part of some of the anti-Mormon Representatives. As may be imagined, this has caused considerable concern in certain quarters, but it is not likely that such a species of blackmailing and bulldozing will amount to much. Both branches of Congress are determined to settle this question, and Mr. Cannon will find some very heavy guns trained on his fortifications before the session closes. This discovery that detectives have been shadowing members has served to increase the bitterness towards the "Latter Day Saints," and the subject will receive some red-hot shot when it comes up for consideration.—Traveler.

MUCH TRUTH IN A SMALL COMPASS.—We are a free people, a great people, an enterprising people; but it must be admitted, also, that we are a Dyspeptic People. Our stomachs are by no means as sound as our political constitution; and many of us, if addressed in the language of a doctor, would say:—

would anxiously inquire by what means the wish could be realized. That question, though, to Thomas Holloway, can be triumphantly answered. The unequalled stomachic known throughout the world as Holloway's Pills, is literally a specific for the complaint. Its perfect digestion results from a dilute condition of the gastric juice—the fluid which dissolves the food in the stomach, and fits it for application to the purposes of life in the form of blood. If the organ which secretes this solvent is in a state of morbid irritation, the fluid will be deficient in quality and quantity, and its appointed office in the internal economy of the system will be inefficiently performed. The stomach being diseased, the whole vital machinery to which it furnishes sustenance and strength will be weakened, and the animal spirit, sympathy with the bodily debility, will become greatly depressed. This is Dyspepsia; and its victims, when it has assumed the chronic form, are the most miserable of mankind. It is generally accompanied by loss of appetite, indigestion, oppression after eating, irregularity of the bowels, low nervous force, great debility, palpitation of the heart, broken sleep, pain in the right side and between the shoulders, and profound melancholy. All these symptoms, and every other that is a manifestation of this distressing malady, are rapidly removed by a course of Holloway's Pills. Putting the testimony of others out of the question, we have full warrant from personal observation for this broad and positive statement.

It is not to be marvelled at, when Dr. Holloway has acquired such universal fame. In those trances upon a man who is distinguished by the speed, simplicity and certainty of his cures, we wish to discharge a duty which we owe, or, thought we owed, to the public. It is for them to set upon our suggestion as they think fit.—Washington Intelligence.

REMARK.—For persons suffering from exhaustion of the powers of the brain and nervous system, from long and continued study, or teaching, or in those cases of exhaustion from which many young men suffer, know of no better medicine for restoration to health than Holloway's Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

WOODSTOCK, JAN. 28, 1882.
I HEREBY desire to tender my sincere thanks to my friends who so kindly removed my furniture, clothing, etc., from the fire January 27, 1882; also to the Union Protection Co. for so carefully protecting and assisting in removing to place of safety afterward.
