His friends prosecuted the search for the miseing hand, which was at length found in the cellar of a barn belonging to a man named Parker. There was with it a bloodrusty knife. Parker admitted his guilt.
Lascelles had met him that night and, as was his habit, began taunting and insulting him.
In a fit of anger Parker killed him with a etake, and in order to remove the ring, cut off the hand at the wrist and took it home with him. Manners was thereupon released and married his sweetheart; but it was a narrow escape from the other kind of a noose.

BURIED UNDER RED HOT CINDERS .- Harrisburg, Jan. 3 .- Almost every day and night in the winter tramps seek the cinder piles at the furnaces in this city to keep warm, the cinders being taken from the furnace when they are red hot. This morning George Richardson, a carter at the Paxon furnace, took a load of red hot cinders, weighing fully a ten, out to the bank and dumped it on top of a tramp who was sleeping at the spot. He uttered no cry, and the carter drove away unconscious of the accident. Some time afterward, another carter noticed smoke aris afterward, another carter noticed smoke arising from the cinders, and detected the smell of burning cloth. He made an examination, and discovered the tramp, whose body was rapidly being consumed. Sammoning help, the charred remains were removed from under the load of hot cinders. The man's head and face were crushed and his body burned almost to a crisp. Nothing was found on his person by which he could be identified. He was about 23 years of age, well built and muscular. The body was buried at the almshouse.

The Shaker Manifesto has the following:
"Half a teaspoonful of common salt dissolved in a little cold water and drunk will instantin a little cold water and drunk will instantly relieve heartburn or dyspepsia. If taken every morning before breakfast, increasing the quantity gradually to a teaspoonful to a glass of water, it will in a few days cure any ordinary case of dyspepsia, if, at the same time, due attention is paid to the diet. There is no better remedy than the above for constipation,— no better gargle for sore throat. It is equal to chlorate of potash, and is entirely safe. It may be used as often and is entirely safe. It may be used as often as desired, and if a little is swallowed each time it will have a beneficial effect on the throat by cleaneing it and allaying iriitation. In doses of one to four teaspoonfuls in half a pint of tepid water, it acts promptly as an emetic; and, in cases of poisoning, is always at hand. It is an excellent remedy for bites and stings of insects, and a valuable astringent for hemorrhages, particularly for bleeding after the extraction of a tooth. It has both cleaneing and healing properties, and is therefore a most excellent application for superficial ulceration."

Foreign periodical literature, and especially that of England, continues to grow both in extent and importance; and The Living Age, which presents with satisfactory freshness and completeness the best of this literature, cannot fail to become more and more valuable to its readers. The first weekly number of the new year has the following table of contents:—The Literature of Seven Dials, National Review; Wraxall's Memoirs, Temple Bar; In the Wrong Paradise, Memoirs, Temple Bar; In the Wrong Paradise, Fortnightly Review; The Baby's Grandmother, a story, Blackwood's Magazine; A Florentine Tradesman's Diary, Saturday Review; A Dancing Epidemic, Chambers' Journal; The Clerical Caste in Scotland, Spectator; together with choice poetry and miscellany. This, the first paper of the new volume, is a good one with which to begin a subscription. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,300 pages a year) the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10:50 the publishers offer to send any one of the American $400 offer to send any one of the American $4 00 monthlies or weeklies with The Living Age for a year, both postpaid.
