As the proposed new guarantee to the C. P. Railway Co. is an absorbing topic of interest just now, we give a summary of Sir Charles Tupper's speech explaining it, when he presented the resolutions in the House of Commons, and of the remarks in reply by Mr. Blake:—

Sir Charles Tupper, in moving the House into committee of the whole to consider the proposed resolutions respecting the Canadian Pacific Railway, said that the statements which he made regarding the Canadian Pacific Railway had been realized, in so far as the vigorous manner in which that great enterprise had been carried on. It now had become quite evident that the construction of the line would be completed in the fall of 1885, and the road thrown open for traffic in the spring of 1886. The Pacific Company, he said, had ample means to finish the railway within the specified time, but it was in the interest of the country that the road should be completed within two years. After eulogizing the company for the energy and enterprise they had displayed, he produced statements submitted by the company to show that they had expended on the main road and branches $8,000,000 over and above what they received from the Government.—The security for the proposed loan was, he said, ample, and even if the company failed and the government took over the road, they would get the entire line at a cost of $103,000,000, which was considerably below the cost as estimated by the opposition. He said the government had expended $3,000,000 in securing railways to the Atlantic Ocean, including the South Eastern, and it was their interest to secure the shortest possible route to the ocean. The British Columbia section would be completed within the contract time. A change had been made in the method of paying the subsidies, so that the company would, in future, draw pay upon the value of the work done instead of upon mileage, as heretofore. This was in order to help them with the heavy rock work on Lake Superior and the Rocky Mountain sections. The total amount of work remaining to be completed by the Pacific syndicate was 780 miles. The general character of the uncompleted work, from the latest information, from Sudbury Junction to Michipicoten, is 210 miles. The work is said to be light and the grading of a sandy character. From Michipicoten to Pic, 140 miles, the work is said to be moderately light, and from Pic to within 35 miles of Nipegon, a distance of 95 miles, the work is excessively heavy, consisting chiefly of hard rock cuttings. From 35 miles east of Nipegon the work is moderately light, and is already about completed. From the summit to the foot of the Rocky Mountains may be generally classed as heavy. From the foot of the Rockies to the foot of the Selkirk range, 30 miles, the work is light, being mostly over flat lands. From the foot of the Selkirk range to the mouth of Eagle Pass, a distance of 64 miles, for mountain construction, the work is classed as moderate, being principally through a gravel formation.—From Eagle Pass to Kamloops, 161 miles, the work is medium cuttings, being through rock, clay and gravel. Generally speaking, the character of the construction throughout presented far less engineering or other difficulties than at first anticipated. Resuming his speech after six o'clock, Sir Charles said that if the company failed the Government would secure the road from Callandar to Port Moody for under $40,000,000. The talk of the company failing was, therefore, out of the question. When the railway north of Lake Superior was completed the Government would discontinue their present monopoly policy in the Northwest. The receipts from Dominion lands from 1880 to 1883, amounted to $3,572,833, showing the wonderful effect of the rapid construction of the Pacific Railway in developing the Northwest. The Customs receipts in these parts had also increased at an enormous rate. He wound up with a glowing picture of the fertility and prospects of the Northwest.

Hon. Mr. Blake, in replying to Sir Chas. Tupper, spoke at length, the burden of his complaint being against the action of the Government in regard to keeping back necessary information which was required by the House before coming to a decision regarding the resolutions and before submitting the same to Parliament. The object of the Ministry, apparently, was to keep business between themselves and the company a secret, notwithstanding that appeal after appeal had been made by himself for full particulars.—As regards the guaranteeing of $65,000,000 stock of the company at three per cent., he argued that it was an unwarrantable transaction and one which transcended the powers invested in the Government for which they ought to have brought in a bill of indemnity explaining the gravity of the case which caused them to take such powers in their own hands. The loan of $22,500,000, as proposed now by the resolutions, was entirely unnecessary, had the company been judicious and exercised that good management which was necessary for the successful carrying on of such a vast enterprise as was the Canadian Pacific Railway. He pointed out some inexplicable discrepancies which occurred between the figures of the president and that supplied by the Minister of Railways in regard to the expenditure on the road. He argued with much vehemence that it was only but right and just to the country that a thorough investigation should have been made into the affairs of the company before making any such loan as was proposed. There was not the slightest doubt but moneys had been diverted from the main line and had been used in outside channels. He in particular cited the purchasing of what is known as the Q. M. O. & O. R. from Mr. Seneeal, which cost the company upwards of $400,000 more than its real value, and as far as the C. P. R. was concerned it was not worth anything. He scouted the idea mentioned by the Minister of Railways that it was necessary to give a loan for the early construction of the road, so as to prevent emigrants being permeated with something unexplainable while passing through the United States, that should make them cling to that country instead of coming to Canada. On the other hand, he always believed that the merits of one country was sufficient to attract emigrants to its shores, apart from any sentimental considerations of this kind, which had not existed in fact. He concurred in the cheap fares recently arranged for on behalf of immigrants between New York and Canada, as the difference of fare was always a consideration with intending settlers.

Bloomfield Items.

After a rest of some weeks from a correspondent's labors, your scribe again takes his quill to pen the current items of the border village.

Mr. J. W. Cheney has secured the agency for a celebrated and popular make of American pianos and organs. With his indomitable perseverance and well known business ability he will no doubt meet with success in his new business, "and he ought to."

Our local traders, R. J. Dunn and C. Woolhaupter report trade brisk and the business outlook most encouraging.

Several of our young men have recently left for Montana Terr., others talk of following soon.

C. T. Alterton, Esq., has opened a shop for the purpose of manufacturing and repairing waggons, sleighs &c. We wish him success, and recommend him and his business to the public.

St. John Notes.

Feb. 11, 1884.

Notwithstanding the unpropitious weather, the lecture on "A day in the heart of England," delivered by Silas Alward, Esq., in Portland Union Hall, was attended by a large audience.

The charge of drinking while on duty was recently preferred against officers Richard Kerneay and Robert McHarg, which has resulted in the dismissal of them both.

It is certain we have a "Fire bug" in our midst. On the 21st inst an attempt was made to burn down the Y. M. C. A. building, on Charlotte street, but was put out by Mr. Geo. Henderson and Mr. Black, the assistant secretary, before much damage was done. Again on Saturday morning another attempt was made to burn the Domville building on King street; about the same time an attempt was made to burn down a barn owned by Mr. M. Ungar, on Waterloo street. Several matches were found near the window, on which paraffine was poured and lighted. What benefit it would be to burn down the Y. C. M. Association it is impossible to see, as there is nothing that anyone could get which would be of any benefit to them.

There will be three carnivals this week in this city.

The annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. will be held on Tuesday evening, 12th; at this meeting the officers for the ensuing year will be elected, and reports presented of the work carried on during the past year.

Beautiful weather here at present, and splendid sleighing.
