THE VELOCITY OF THE MOON. - From the article on " The Surroundings of the Sun," by Professor Langley, in the October Century, is clipped the following: "We can faintly picture perhaps how it would seem from a station near the lunar orbit, to see the moon—a moving world—rush by with a velocity greater than that of the cannon ball in its swiftest flight; but with equal speed its shadow actually travels along the earth; and now, if we return from our imaginary station to a real one here below; we are better prepared to see why this flying shadow is such an unique spectacle; for small as it may be when seen in relation to the whole globe it is immense to the observer whose entire here immense to the observer, whose entire horizon is filled with it, and who sees the actual velocity of one of the heavenly bodies, as it were, brought down to him.

"The reader who has ever ascended to the Superga at Turin will recall the magnificent view, and be able to understand the good fortune of an observer (Forbes) who once had the opportunity to witness thence this phenomenon, and under a nearly cloudless sky, Abraham Thomas, of England, has gone | I perceived, he said, in the southwest a black shadow like that of a storm about to girl worth $100,000.
