SAMUEL & JAMES WATTS,] Our Queen and Constitution. [Editors & Proprietors

VOL. XXXVI.—NO. 42. WOODSTOCK, N. B., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1884. WHOLE NO.—1861.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S HOUSEHOLD.

The Queen's court is composed of officers, subordinates, and attendants to the number of nearly a thousand, the majority receiving salaries that may be called more than liberal.

First and foremost comes the Lord Steward, whose office is a political one, in the gift of existing Ministry; his salary is $10,000 a year. He is the principal officer of the court, and has jurisdiction over the entire household. All officers and servants connected with the court, except those of the Queens chamber, chapel, and stables, are subject to his orders. He appears at court on all state occasions, and the subordinate officials of the household are appointed by him.

The active duties of the Lord Steward are performed by the Master of the Household, whose constant residence is within the precincts of the palace. Necessarily he has a large staff of officers to assist him, having full control over the domestic establishment. The salary of the master is $5,790 a year, and his private secretary receives $1,500 a year.

The Lord Treasurer ranks next to the Lord Steward, acts for him at all state ceremonies in case he is absent, and draws $4,520 a year; while to assist him he has the Comptroller of the Household, who also is paid $4,520 and likewise does nothing.

The Board of Green Cloth is composed of the four above mentioned officials and adjudicates on offences committed in certain parts of the palace. To assist them in their onerous duties, they have a secretary at $1,500 a year three accounting clerks at $1,000 a year each, divers other clerks to the number of six, and one female assistant.

The clerk of the kitchen is an important functionary, evidenced by the fact that he gets $3,500 a year and "found." Under him he has seven clerks to keep accounts, check goods as they are received, and give the necessary orders to the tradespeople.

The chief receives $3,500 a year, and his four assistant cooks $1,750 each, with the privilege of each taking an apprentice, the latter having to pay a premium of about $1 000. There are six other assistant cooks, and twelve helpers of different kinds.

The head of the confectionery department of the kitchen receives $1 500 yearly, and his assistant $1 250, they having six other assistants: in addition there are the pastry cook and baker, with four assistants, and three women having charge of the coffee room. The linen is looked after in the "ewer" department, consisting of a yeoman and two assistants.

The chief butler receives $2,500 a year. He holds an important position, inasmuch as he selects and buys all the wines used in the royal household. To properly arrange the table before the Queen's dinner is served there are two principal table deckers with $1,000 a year each, a second table decker at $750, a third at $450, and an assistant with $260.

The least liberal salaries probably are those paid to the three yeomen having charge of the plate pantry, whose united salaries amount to but $2,150, while the valuables intrusted to their care are estimated to be worth from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. They have six assistants. The care of her Majesty's coals must be an arduous duty, as it is intrusted to no less than thirteen persons.

The first and second lamplighters receive $500 a year each and board money, and have seven assistants.

The Court of the Marshalsea is a regular court of justice attached to the Queens's household, having jurisdiction over all places within twelve miles from Whitehall. The Lord Steward is the Judge, the function of the court being to administer justice between the Queen's domestic servants. This court was established by Henry VIII., and now costs the nation $9,620 a year, not including the salary of the chief of police of this court (who is called Knight Marshal) $2,500 a year each.

On Maundy-Thursday of each year, and twice a year in Scotland Yard, alms are distributed to the poor. The almonry is the office that looks after these distributions, the two principal officers of which are called the Hereditary Grand Almoner and the Lord High Almoner. Both offices are honorary, but they have a secretary, who receives $1,750 a year, about the amount distributed to the poor on Maundy-Thursday.

The Lord Chamberlain receives $10,000 a year and the Vice-Chamberlain $4,620. They superintend all the officers and servants belonging to the Queen's chambers, except the bed chambers these being under the groom of the stole, as well as the officers of the wardrobe. All entertainments given in the palace are under their care, and they have to audit all accounts connected with royal marriages, coronations, funerals, &c. To assist the Chamberlain there are a comptrollor of accounts, three clerks, and four messengers, their united salaries amounting to $15,550.

In this department also is the keeper of her Majesty's Privy Purse, who receives a salary of $10,000 a year and a percentage on her Majesty's privy purse. He is the financial secretary to the Queen.

The Mistress of the Robes draws a salary of $2,500, and the Groom of the Robes $4 000, with three assistants. There are also eight ladies of the bedchamber, who each in rotation wait on her Majesty a fortnight at a time.

The Queen's Maids of Honor are eight in number, and receive $1,500 a year each. They attend her Majesty two at a time for a month, thus serving but three months in the year.

The Bed Chamber women are the same in number as the Maids of Honor, receive the same salary, and serve in rotation in the same manner. They are only expected, however, to figure on state occasions.

Next we have eight Lords in Waiting, the Grooms in Waiting, the Gentlemen Ushers of the Privy Chamber, Daily Waiters, Grooms of the Privy Chambers, Quarterly Waiters, Grooms of the Great Chambers, and thirty-two Gentlemen of the Private Chamber.

These last named receive no pay whatever, except the honor of the thing, while the first named cost the exchequer $55,965 a year.

A difficult position to fill is that of Marshal of the Ceremonies. He attends on all state occasions, and conducts foreign ambassadors, &c., to the Queen's presence. A thorough knowledge of the details of etiquette, and, above all, of precedence is absolutely necessary in the post. The salary is only $1,600 a year.

There are five pages of the Back Stairs, who receive $2,000 a year each. Their duties are to wait on the sovereign. Two State Pages and a Page of the Chambers assist the five.

The Lords, Ladies and Maids of Honor have six Pages of the Presence to attend them at breakfast and luncheon. These pages are also required to wait on her Majesty's visitors. They each receive $900 a year, and have pages—men to wait on them.

Eight sergeants-at-arms draw $500 a year apiece. Their duties are now nominal, though in the days of the joust and tourney they were to "hold watch outside the royal tent in complete armor, with bow, arrows, sword and mace of office; and to capture any traitor about the court or other great offenders."

Other relics of past ages are three kings-of-arms and six heralds.

Last in the Lord Chamberlain's department are messengers innumerable, palace inspectors, nine housekeepers, sixty housemaids, three linen room women, and two attendants to show the public through Windsor Castle, with salaries ranging from a nominal sum to $1,500.

The ecclesiastics, with their necessary following, attached to the house are many in number and cost a large sum yearly in salaries. The list is as follows: "Dean and sub-dean of the Chapel Royal, St. James the clerk of the closet, three deputy clerks, a resident of the chaplain, a closet keeper, forty-eight chaplains in ordinary and ten priests in ordinary, with four chaplains, three preachers, and three readers for the chapels at Whitehall, Hampton, Windsor and Kensington; also a choir of boys, four organists two composers, a violinist, a sergeant of the vestry, and a master of boys."

For doctors, &c., $13,500 a year is paid.

The State Band though it is seldom heard, costs $9,580 a year.

We next come to the Poet Laureate, who draws inspiration from the Sate at rate of $500 a year.

The Master of the Tennis Court does nothing, for which he receives $660 a year. After him, with nominal duties, come the Burgomaster, and two watermen, whose united salaries amount to $2,000 a year; the keeper of the swans, a keeper of the jewels in the Tower, an exhibitor of the jewels, a principal librarian in ordinary, a painter, and a surveyor of pictures.

During the reign of Henry VIII., he instituted the Corps to Gentlemen Pensioners, composed of members of the highest families, selected by himself. They bore this title until the accession of William IV., when it was changed to that of Gentlemen-at-arms. The corps now consists principally of half pay officers, but it still maintains its high tone, and under no consideration is a tradesman allowed to enter. The appointments in it now are regularly bought and sold, and bring good prices, the office of Lieutenant and Silver Stick having been known to bring $50,000. The cost of running the corps is $25,000 a year. The Captain and Gold Stick has a salary of $5,000, the Lieutenant and Silver Stick $2,500, and each of the forty gentlemen-at-arms $500, and $15 a day for travelling expenses when ordered on country service.

The Beef Eaters, or Body Guard of Yeomen, will be remembered by all who have visited the Tower by their peculiar garb of the Tudor period. Their Captain, always a peer, receives $5,000 a year, and the men $450 a year each.

The Master of the Horse spends $62,815 a year. Under him are different equerries and Pages of Honor, a sergeant footman, fifteen footmen, twelve coachmen, twenty grooms, and fifty helpers.

ADVICE TO A YOUNG MAN.

And then remember, my son, you have to work. Whether you handle a pick or a pen, a wheelbarrow or a set of books, digging ditches or editing a paper, ringing an auction bell or writing funny things, you must work. If you look around, son, you will see the men who are most able to live the rest of their days without work are the men who work the hardest. Don't be afraid of killing yourself with over-work, son. It is beyond your power to do that, on the sunny side of thirty. They die sometimes, but it's because they quit work at 6 p. m. and don't get home until 2 a. m. It's the interval that kills, my son. The work gives you an appetite for your meals, it lends solidity to your slumbers, it gives you a perfect and grateful appreciation of a holiday. There are young men who do not work, my son; but the world is not proud of them. It does not know their names, even; it simply speaks of them as old so-and-so's boys. Nobody likes them; the great busy world doesn't know that they are there. So find out what you want to be and do, my son, and take off your coat and make a dust in the world. The busier you are the less deviltry you will be apt to get into, the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and happier your holidays, and the better satisfied will the world be with you.—Burdette.

Never be ashamed to confess your ignorance, for the wisest man on earth is ignorant of many things, insomuch that what he knows is mere nothing in comparison with what he does not know. There cannot be a greater folly in the world than to suppose we know everything.

The most glorious exploits do not always furnish us with the clearest discoveries of virtue or vice in men. Sometimes a matter of least moment, an expression or a jest, informs us better of their characters and inclinations than the most famous sieges, the greatest armaments, or the bloodiest battles whatsoever.

What is death? To go out like a light, and in a sweet trance to forget ourselves and all the passing phenomona of the day as we forget the phantom of a fleeting dream; to form as in a dream new connections with God's world; to enter into a more exalted sphere, and to make a new step up man's graduated ascent of creation.

Expect not praise without envy until you are dead. Honors bestowed on the illustrious dead have in them no admixture of envy; for the living pity the dead; and pity and envy, like oil and vinegar, assimilate not.

Carrying War
Into the enemy's country. This is verified in the case of Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, so favorably known throughout Canada. The large demand from the United States for this great corn cure has induced the proprietors to put it up there, and boldly push it to the front as the leading article in its line. From England also a demand has arisen. This is the reverse of the usual methods, as a large portion of the proprietory goods sold here eminate from these countries. This speaks highly in favor of Putnam's Extractor, the great corn cure. We advise sufferers form this discomfort to test its merits.—Exchange.

In four days last week the Moncton Sugar Refinery shipped upwards of half a million pounds of sugar.

INFLUENCE.—The influence of McLean's Vegetable Worm Syrup on the stomach is beneficial, whether there be Worms present or not; no unpleasant results follow the use of this medicine.

Krupp, the famous maker of heavy ordnance, has lately commenced the manufacture of a new kind of gunpowder, which does not explode in the open air or in packages, but burns slowly. It explodes only in hermetically closed places, and then has wonderful power to propel projectiles. It is composed, like ordinary gunpowder, of saltpetre, sulphur and charcoal, but in new proportions. One great advantage to the new powder is that it emits very little smoke when used in a gun.

A Remarkable Record.
The most remarkable cure of scrofula on record is that of the Rev. Wm Stout, of Wiarton, whose case of Scrofulous Abscess baffled the skill of seventeen Surgeons for twenty-three years. He was perfectly cured by Burdock Blood Bitters.

The temperature has scarcely fallen below 90° night or day for a week in Virginia. Vegetation is burned up and the ground parched to a great depth, making plowing impossible. The hay crop is destroyed. In south-west Virginia the grazers are driving their cattle into Tennessee for water. The small streams are drying up.

A Cure for Cholera.
Procure from your druggist one bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and take as directed. It cures all Summer Complaints.

Three hundred young Texas cattle were tramped to death in the Arkansas country, during a hail storm. They stampeded and collided against a wire fence, when the stronger ones killed the weaker.

A St. Ann's Victory.
Mr. John Morrison, well known in St. Ann's, N. S., had serious Kidney Complaint that bordered on dropsy. After hope had nearly fled, he was cured by Burdock Blood Bitters.

The Queen has sent to the Secretary of State a number of copies of her book "More Leaves from My Journal" with the request to forward them to a number of specified libraries in the Dominion. The Princess Louise has supplemented the gift with some valuable educational prints.

Can Deafness be Cured?
Mr. John Clark, of Millbridge, Ont., declares it can, and that Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the remedy that cured him. It is also a specific for all inflammation and pain.

A decided sensation was created at Coburg, Ont., Monday, when it was announced that over 1,000 names had been purloined from the petition lying in the Sheriff's office praying for the submission of the Scott Act in the united counties of Northumberland and Durham. This act will have the effect of rendering null and void the present petition, and it will so delay the submission of the Scott Act in these counties that it cannot take effect in case of adoption till the end of the next license year.

Four years ago Mr. Gladstone delivered at Leeds a speech which contained 8,400 words and occupied one hour and three-quarter in delivery, so that it was spoken at the rate of 80 words a minute. One of his recent efforts in Scotland contained 11,500 words and was delivered at the rate of 118 words a minute.

After 170 years of rest, the work of completing the exterior of Westminister Abbey is about to be taken up. Next summer tourists will probably see the venerable pile in a cloud of scaffolding. A central tower, as a spire, is to be added at a cost of £70,000. Queen Victoria will be the first sovereign to leave a mark on the outer shell of the building since the western towers were finished in the year of Queen Anne's death.

IRON IS KING.—And Estey's Iron and Quinine Tonic is called the King of Blood Purifiers.

A live tortise was found in a solid cake of ice at Cornwall, N. Y., on Saturday last. The Linden Park ice wagon delivered a load of ice at Mr. Owen S. Clark's meat market in that village, and Mr. Clark discovered the turtle. It measures eight inches in length and five in width, and was carefully cut out and taken to Mr. Clare's home, where, after it had lain in the sun for a few hours, it began to show signs of life. It is now looked upon as a great curiosity, as the ice was gathered last winter and the turtle is apparently none the worse for its ten month's confinement in its congealed abiding place.

A gentleman writes: "I desire to place on record the cure of the Piles by using Minard's Family Pills and applying Minard's Liniment externally." Use equal parts of Liniment and sweet oil for applying; it reduces inflammation and gives comfort at once.

WORMS.—A young mother writes:—"My little boy, 5 years of age, was very much troubled with worms. A few doses of Nelson's Cherokee Vermifuge brought away the worms and improved his general health. There is nothing like it as a worm expeller.

There is no pain, no matter how severe nor what the cause, that cannot be partly or wholly relieved by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, used internally and externally. It is the most powerful remedy known to medical men.

There is nothing so essential to health and happiness as pure rich blood. It prevents exhausted vitality, premature decline, nervous and physical debility, besides untold other miseries. Parson's Purgative Pills purify and enrich the blood, and will change the blood in the entire system in three months.

A TRIP TO BOIESTOWN.

A small party, consisting of three ladies and two gentlemen, left Woodstock on Thursday last, en route to Fredericton by the river road, driving at fair speed two fine horses owned by Messrs. Lee & McDonough, down the banks of the beautiful St. John, taking in all that beautiful scenery for which it is noted, until we reached Shogomoc, when we baited the quadrupeds and satisfied the inner man by a good square meal. We again cast our eyes heavenward and behold the beauties of nature are more attractive than ever to our sensitive orbs by the mist being cleared away and revealing to us the sun which spreads its rays alike upon the just and unjust. But, stop, I am in duty bound to say that they were all just persons, peaceably disposed toward each other except at lunch again, this time at Prince William, when they took advantage of the solemnity of the occasion and made war with a nest of hornets by spreading the table cloth in their midst, to the detriment of all concerned; how much, we will tell another time. Well, after partaking of all the delicacies of the season and feeling right side up, we again continued our course down stream, through those fine farms located in the parishes of Prince William, Dumfries and Kingsclear, where the fields are flourishing with the golden grain that fills the mouths of so many dependent on the goodness of the Creator of all things; as our hearts gladden with warm appreciation, may we never be reminded in any other way that it is to Him we owe all things.

Imagine our surprise when driving through that section known as the French Village, to find a host of celestials enjoying the day at a tea meeting, and greatly adding to that enjoyment was sweet strains from Bryson's popular band, enabling those who desired to trip the light fantastic to show the youth and vigor of their age. Upon arriving at the Hub we unloaded our cargo of ever precious freight, (although considerably flattened out by running over thank you marms), and handed the horses over to Mr. George I. Gunter, of Westmoreland street stables, who well and carefully cartered to their wants. After forgetting ourselves for the remainder of the night and feeling content to nod it out, some heartless wretch aroused us from our slumbers by the cry of fire; the conflagration proved to be on the lower end of King street and destroyed several buildings; just a bonfire compared with Woodstock fires. Shortly after the blackness of night disappeared and the light of another glorious day dawned upon us. We were summoned to breakfast, the table liberally supplying all the wants of a thinly dug-out people, and those people that are sometimes too modest to eat heartly, stowed away a goodly share of the provender, so much so that they were hardly able to walk down town to see the sights and sounds, familiar places and voices. Queen street has rapidly raised itself above the principal streets of sister towns and reflects great credit upon the enterprising community, merchants and citizens generally. The public buildings tower above all in prominence, excepting the Parliament building and there has been so much said about it that we cannot change but simply say it is grand, "immense," and will compare favorably with any building in the Maritime Provinces.

While thus engaged the Native Militia corps left their quarters to parade on the flats below Fredericton, it being their weekly review, in skirmishing order. The men marched in a soldier like manner to the beat of the drum, both rank and file presenting a fine appearance, on horse and foot, the band playing finely and the movements up to time, but for all that a very small thing was noticeable and that was the movements of an officer, from—— a one year man, who could run away from his men and pay
