LITERARY NOTICES .- Littell's Living Age .-The numbers of The Living Age for June 7th and 14th contain the Chronicle of James I. of Aragon, Edinburgh; Cardinal Newman, and Some Neglected Periods of History, Contemporary; Frederick Denison Maurice, Nineteenth Century; Possibilities of Ballooning, Fortnightly; The Mad Czar, and The Courts of Three Presidents, Thiers, McMahon, Grevy, Temple Bar; In a Great Town Hospital, Macmillan's; "John Bull et son Ile" in the Sixteenth Century, Irish Love and Laughter, the Princess Alice, and The Original Americans, Spectator; The Juggernaut, Peoples of the World; The Sources of the Jordan, weer; with instalments of "The Baby's Grandmother," "An Episode of Circle Valley," " May Abbot's Tryst" and "Interlopers at the Knap," and poetry. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,300 pages a year) the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10.50 the publishers offer to send any one of the American $4.00 monthlies or weeklies with The Living Age for a year, both postpaid. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers. Harper's Magazine for July, in its literature and its illustrate, is a mirror of the summer world. In its opening article we are transported to the Valley of the Nile. Dr. Trautvetter's description of the Nile Festival - the burden of his paper—is as picturesque as are the effective illustrations contributed by Sir Frederick Leighton, the President of the Royal Academy. Di Moritz Busch takes us to Prince Bismark's favorite haunts-his Pomeranian home, his country-seat in the heart of Sachsenwald, and his beautiful park in Varzin. Phillip Bourke Marston's delightful poem, "The Roses and the Nightingale," is a pleasant interlude between Stratford and Harrow, whose Cricket match at Lord's brings the London season to a close. The illustrations for Mr. Hatton's "Harrow-on-the-Hill" are very picturesque. Then Mr. Roe's Hill' are very picturesque. Then Mr. Roe's novel, "Nature's Serial Story," brings us home again to the banks of the Hudson, and still it is the summer-land, and we are in the midst of pastoral scenes, the most beautiful in America. The story of "The Silent Schools of Kendall Green," as told by Sarita M. Brady, is very interesting and beautifully illustrated. The "Approaches to New York" is another finely illustrated article. With the chapter on "Old Hickory''—illustrated by full-page portraits of Andrew Jackson and Daniel Webster - Colonel Higginson concludes his interesting American respectfully solicit a share of patronage. History series. There are good short stories by Frank R Stockton and Miss Mary E. Wilkins. "An Honest Soul," by the latter, is an unusually strong piece of realistic fiction, in its sympathetic quality reminding one of Millet's best work as a painter. This number contains eleven full-page engravings.

THE PLUMED KNIGHT.—Many people are curious to know why James G. Blaine is described him as the unconquerable champion, the Henry of Navarre, the plumed knight of his party. The plumed knight story has adhered to Blaine, in spite of the fact that a few hours after the conferring of the distinction upon him he was handsomely defeated by Rutherford B. Hayes, who by a large majority became the Republican nomi

Wilmot, C. C., June 12th, 1884.

Quincy, Ill., June 13.—This city has a Charlie Ross, who bids fair to turn out the original and only, at least so says G. W. Moran of Troy, N. Y., a cousin of the missing boy, who has come on for that purpose and who identifies him. The boy says he is Charlie Ross and claims to have been stolen by gypsies from his father's house and taken to Tex as 10 years ago; that be escaped and made his way to Missouri, where he was picked up and brought to Quincy. The original Charlie Ross had an enlargement of the vertel a just below the neck, which this boy has. Charlie Ross is the same age as this boy claims to be; has the same colour of eyes and the same features. This boy's eyes are of peculiar thape, which he claims is owing to his having been scalded by the gypsies, and his body is covered with marks of burns, records of his cruel treatment at the hands of his captors. He has always known his name was Charlie Ross, but was never allowed to use the name or be called by it. He has a scar on his arm, caused, he says, by an arrow. He describes minutely his arrest by two men and life in the gypsy camp. The boy is very intelligent naturely, but can neither read nor write. He has been subjected to rigid examinations, and answers every question, never contradicting himself, and giving many points that go to establish his identity. So strongly do circumstances point to him as being Charlie Ross that Mr. Moran says he will leave to-night with him claims to be; has the same colour of eyes and Moran says he will leave to-night with bim for Philadelphia.

A substitute for genuine human hair is now made out of the inner lining of the bud of the palmetto tree. It can be made any length and dyed any color.

May 7th, 1878, says:from Memramcook to consult a physician, as I was in the last stages of Consumption. When I arrived here I had at once to go to my bed, and was so low I never expected to leave it. A physician was called who pronounced my case as hopeless; that I might live a week or two, but not certainly more. As a last resort he recommended "Robinson's Cod Liver Oil with Lacto-Phosphate of Lime." I purchased a bottle and after taking the first dose commenced to improve.
