THE proceedings of the Town Council board read in the report published in this paper with a feeling of pleasure. The good feeling existing among the members of the Council voiced in the most kindly sentiments. And the high functionary assailed. we know their sentiments were not the ex-Jones has, during his incumbency of effice, Carleton figures pretty largely : discharged its duties, we believe, as fully to the satisfaction of the people as the Council. The fact that during his regime and under his advice and direction the water works have been so satisfactorily and succesfully introduced and completed will remain as it now is a testimonial more elequent than any embodiment of words.

And of Mr. Lynch it may safely be said that his services in the same connection were valuable as they were zealous. For this gentleman as a councillor equally as a citizen the SENTINEL entertains the big lest regard, and he retires from the Council with a worthy supply in the Local Legislature, which was in vogue.

Nor should it be forgotten that Messrs. Everett and Graham, retiring councillors, Gover have both served the town lengthil, and well, leaving to their successors an official example that may safely be followed.

In the English Parliament, when a disposition was shown to criticise the Government in regard to its attitude towards Germany, Mr. Gladstone delivered these patriotic utterances. He said he wished it was distinctly understood that Prince Bismarck's despatch of May 5 had never been delivered to the English government. He regretted this, because the despatch would have received all the friendly attention it well deserved. He declared he would stand behind no man in the value he attached to the friendship of Germany. He must say, however, he was not prepared to admit the friendship of any country in the world was now or ever had been necessary to enable England to maintain her position. If Germany became a colonizing power, he would only say God speed to her. He hoped she would become England's partner and ally in the work of civilizing the work.
