July 5, 1886. The crops that were on a stand-still on ac count of the continuous dry weather, are rapidly advancing since the recent rains, several places eing effected greatly by the drought. Hay, which was thought on account of the early Spring's start, would be an abundant crop, will scarcely exceed the average.

Miss Ring and Miss Miller, two estimable adies who had the management of our schools, have taken their departure for their respective homes, where they will spend their vacation. Meesrs. John and Arthur Avery have returnhome from Minnesota. They have concluded to settle in their native county; they would say to the young men of New Brunewick, when you think you cannot make a comfortable living in N. B , and take the western fever thinking that you would get better advantages in Minnesota or other States of equal comparison, you are greatly mistaken; you will find that everything is not milk and honey, for it requires harder labor for the same living there than here. Toeir advice is from experience. Stick to New Brunswick, young friends!

Our young folks are taking advantage of the present good state of the roads, making horses and carriages fairly hum. Mr. James Ryan has completed the outside of his residence, which adds greatly to its appearance. Messrs. Kenney & Phillips are each placing an addition to their residences.

June 30th 1886. The late rains have done immense good to the crops in general, a vast good especially to the counted on the ends of your fiogers. Hundreds of competitors have sprung up, and by means of unlimited puffing have met with large sales for a few years, but as their defects became known they were borne down by the resistless force of public opinion, and to-day (with a very few exceptions) they "sleep in unknown graves, unwept, unhonored, and unsung." In the meantime the Buckeye has kept on the even tenor of its way, keeping the general principles unchanged. Buckeye manufacturers have adopted all real improvements, and as a consequence their sales have increased year by year until to-day they exceed those of all other Mowers combined.
