OUR SOUTHERN BUDGET.

CLOTHES PINS AND DUST-PANS REGARDED AS MYSTERIES-A NEGRO GIRL'S ASTONISH MENT-PAPER TWINE, RED KER-OSENE OIL. RED RISERS, RED TOP BOOTS.

One day recently while riding in a "firstsignated as first-and second-class in the true Eoglish style] we overbeard a lady from New York city remark that she was in love with the South. She said that she would be perfectly miserable if she thought that she would be obliged by circumstances to live constantly in the chilly and changeable North. She had spent her childhood and maiden days on a valuable farm in Southern Ohio. Her later days had been spent in the great metropolis of the nation. She had never known poverty, and what necessaries and comforts she spent every hour that she could out of doors. She walked. She rode borse back. She 35c. took buggy rides. She regained her health; and who can blame her for loving what had actually given her life as well as happinese?

To Secure a Bargain! What some people from the East and North found fault with she found to be pleasant. Also a great Remnant Sale of Prints, The negroes, she said, were good-hearted, than the ordinary kinds and cannot be sold in obliging, and would always repay kind treat- competition with the multitudes of low test, shor patterns; Cottons of Gibson make of education and refinement. Among other Street, New York, thing she said that to hear the manner in which the native Southerners spoke the Eng-100 pieces of Parks' Shirtings, at 10 cts. lish language was the sweetest of lingual music. There was something mellow and beautiful about the ton s, the accent, and the general utterance. This set me to thinking, for I had heard the very opposite remarks made by other people from the North. The trouble is that some people are bound to shoot with their own guns every time, fully convinced that the guns of their neighbors are not worth It is a well known aphorism that "a green Christmas makes a fat grave yard." And yet green Christmases are the relationship. yet green Christmases are the rule and white ones the exception in the South. The "green Chr s mas' may apply to the North, dietrac ed. and just "plumb," In the North this term is used almost, if not quite, exclusively by carpen ers and it simply means "plumb;" I mention these peculiarities of speach simply as peculiarities. Anon I shall mention others. I do this not in a spirit of criticism, but because they are mat-ters of interest to many readers. There is a vein in everybody's make-up that makes us become interested in what is new or strange. Curiosity is not all confined to the gentler sex, either.

reminded that a lady recently went into a store not a thousand miles from here and called with the most perfect nonchalance for two doz n clothes- pins. The clerk handed her a paper of pins, The same lady called f r a dust-par. The clerk looked puzzled, said they didn't keep 'em and finally asked or before to a purchaser of what a dust-pun is used for. Writing of part thereof—consisting of thes pins reminds me of a little incident. A negro girl employed as a domestic laugh-ed herself sick recently over the manner in which two men of the North did their washing "They done go ttheir clo'es out on a rope, and they stuck some of the funniest little wooden things. like tongs; over 'em you ever did see." Young nursery stock in the, nothern part of the state is badly damaged by being topkilled, but will by no means be a total loca Bearing orange and lemon trees, nearly down to the line of the South Florida Railroad, are in-jured to the extent of losing a large part of the fall growth on which the bloom comes, so that the crop of 1886 will be largely reduced in that regin Pineapples in the same region, t gather with guavas and other tropi-cal fruits are killed in the roots and will require a year to recuperate. Early vegetables have been badly damaged, but can be replaced, the principal loss on them being the time and expense of planting and the loss of extra prices of an carly market. The whole spot money damage to the fruit and farm interests of the state will not exceed $2,000,000. The trees are showing great recuperative power, and the logs being widely distributed will be comparatively easy to bear.

A touching incident is related of a recent shipwreck on the New England coast. The captain's wife and children were lost. They had on board a few tame doves. When the body of the wife was found on the shore a dove was found on the body and flew to the house to which the remains of the drowned window gained admission.
