There was now to the credit of the County $900, and $250 more he expected to collect which would swell the amount, after paying all expenses, to over $1,000. Fault had been found with him that he had not been so rabid as he should have been, but he thought the Council would approve of his course. An Inspector must have some liberty of judgment given him, and he had felt it his duty to keep the expenditures within the receipts, for when it became necessary to levy an assessment on the County to enforce the Canada Temperance Act, it would do away with the On motion, petition received and ordered law.
