Whereto thy people trade. t is the year of Jubilee, through Britain's wide domain. Thank God that half a century has seen Her people are to peace inclined, and much Victoria's reign ! And would that balf a century more, Could see the Queen whom we adore,

In Britain reigning still. If we could have such Queen's for ave, as she who sits the throne, We'd then reverse the Salic law, for glorious Queens alone How brightly gleams each precious gem That decks thy royal diadem,

Thou noblest Queen on earth! It is thy self, thy sterling worth, gives lustre Oh lady of a noble heart, and well deserved As first graced by thy youthful brow, it shines with equal splender now, Upon a peerless Queen !

Thy subjects all, as one, unite throughout To bless thee ever noble Queen, our glory and Their prayer is this, to Him above, God bless the Sovereign whom we love, And grant her long to reign!'

Glad tongues take up the loud refrain, and myriad voices rise. In every land throughout the earth, where Britain's banner flies. In thankful praise that we are blessed. Victoria! with thee the best Of Soverigns on earth!

Since on the British throne to sit, first came our noble Queen, How many thrones have fallen quite, or badly shaken been, Whilst still Victoria reigns secure. And one more noble, good, and pure, Ne'er graced a royal seat!

In God she trusts, this Christian Queen, He'll savely guard His own, And long uphold the empire, and Victoria on the throne : He'll bless the land with statesmen wise, To safely act in each emprise, For all the nation's weal.
