POOR COPY

Travels 'round the world like lone folk,

Do you think, my little maiden, He could ever guess your wishes— That you'd find your stockings laden With a doll and set of dishes! No; the truth is, some one whispers In the ear he hears the best with. What to suit the youngest lispers, Boys and girls, and all the rest with.

Some one (ah, you guess in vain, deat!) Nestled close by old Kriss Kringle, Laughs to see the prancing reindeer, Laughs to hear the sleigh bells jingle. Dear old lady, small and rosy ! In the nipping, Christmas weather, Nestle close, so warm and cosy, These two chat for hours together. So, if I were in your places, Rob and Hal and Kate and Mary I would be in the good graces
