P. R. contract thus leaving free trade in railways over all the Territories. Although this was the outcome of the negotistions as outlined in my l'et letter it now bears the impress of official sanction, and owing to the far reaching effect of the new policy on the Northwest, its importance warrants rethat the C. P R. wanted Manitoba to buy the Emerson branch for a million dollars but Mr. Greenway would not offer half a million because of the large sum already spent on the Red River Valley parallel line. There is this to be borne in mind that the construction of railways in the Northwest is a mere matter of floating the bonds. There are no mechanical problems for engineering skill to solve.
