Constipation

Demands prompt treatment. The results of neglect may be serious. Avoid all harsh and drastic purgatives, the tendency of which is to weaken the bowels. The best remedy is Ayer's Pills. Being purely vegetable, their action is prompt and their effect always beneficial. They are an admirable Liver and After-dinner pill, and everywhere endorsed by the profession.

"Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."—Dr. I. E. Fowler, Bridgeport, Conn.

"I can recommend Ayer's Pills above all others, having long proved their value as a cathartic for myself and family."—J. T. Hess, Leithsville, Pa.

"For several years Ayer's Pills have been used in my family. We find them an for constipation and indigestion, and are never without them in the house."—Moses Grenier, Lowell, Mass.

"I have used Ayer's Pills, for liver troubles and indigestion, during many years, and have always found them prompt and efficient in their action."—L. N. Smith, Utica, N. Y.

"I suffered from constipation which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared it would cause a stoppage of the bowels. Two boxes of Ayer's Pills effected a complete cure."—D. Burke, Saco, Me.

"I have used Ayer's Pills for the past thirty years and consider them an invaluable family medicine. I know of no better remedy for liver troubles, and have always found them a prompt cure for dyspepsia."—James Quinn, 90 Middle st., Hartford, Conn.

"Having been troubled with costiveness, which seems inevitable with persons of sedentary habits, I have tried Ayer's Pills, hoping for relief. I am glad to say that they have served me better than any other medicine. I arrive at this conclusion only after a faithful trial of their merits."—Samuel T. Jones, Oak st., Boston, Mass.

IN MEMORIAM, 1888.

William Nickson, East Glassville, died Oct. 31st, aged 19 years.

Whilliam Wheeler, Glassville, died Nov. 1st, aged 1 year 6 months.

There is something always peculiarly affecting in the death of the young. We are not surprized when we see our aged friends of four-score years—men of feeble and tottering limb—overtaken in the ordinary course of nature by the hand of the last enemy, and removed from an earthly sphere, which they had, it may be, so long adorned by their virtue and faith, to that spirit-land, where the weary are at rest. Again, when men are called away, in the flush and glory of the meridian of life, with the world's prizes of wealth and fame almost within their grasp, worn out in the pursuit of pleasure, or with every energy completely exhausted by the terrible strain on body and mind, which the ceaseless and sleepless pursuit of mere earthly agrandizement invariably entails on those whom any alluring phase of "the mirage of life" has enslaved,—such removals in the retributive providence of God do not fill us with astonishment. Such men demand more of nature than nature is able to supply, and hence their early breaking up. They put their bodily and mental mechanism to too severe a test, and hence the speedy rending of the cords of life. Nor are we astonished when the votary of what is usually called sinful pleasure or unlawful indulgence in any of those grossly licentious courses, which disgrace humanity, is overtaken in his shameful career, when the poisoned cup of unholy gratification is forever dashed from his parched and livid lips, when "thus far shalt thou go and no farther" blazes before his sunken eye, when no consolations of loving friends and no earthly allurements can bring back the rose to his hectic cheek or ease the burning throbbing of his fevered brain, when Conscience, that "blushing shame-faced spirit," mutinies in the soul, and when the body racked by disease, the earthly penalty of sin, sinks into a premature grave, and the spirit naked and alone is summoned to give an account of the deeds done in the flesh, at that tribunal, whose righteous Judge no wealth can exempt, nor worldly pomp deceive. Nor once more, are we filled with wonder, when we read of many of our fellow creatures being hurled by accidental catastrophies, which all our scientific appliances are unable to avert, unanointed and unanealed into the presence of their Maker, often without a note of warning. We witness these windings up of life so often in the world, that when they occur, they do not fill us with any great astonishment. But it is different, in many cases of death among the young. In some instances the sun of life has scarcely risen above the horizon, ere it sets, or if permitted to shine for a few years, it goes down at noon. The morning of life, with all its bright hopes and glowing prospects of the future has, as it were, just dawned, when all those beautiful anticipations are quenched in the gloom of the grave. Thus, when manhood and grey hairs are called upon to follow the remains of vigorous youth and helpless infancy to their last resting place, it seems that the order of nature is reversed. To see a helpless little one convulsed with pain, which you know you cannot alleviate—to gaze into the depths of those little sparkling orbs, and feel, that instead of instinctively turning to your loving countenance, they are looking far far away—to be painfully conscious, that the beauty is slowly fading from that cherub brow, and the lovely tints of the rose paling on cheek and lip—to watch with aching heart the silken fringes of those curtaining lids, now being drawn for ever on the things of earth—to witness with agony of spirit the setting of the seal of silence on that sweet murmuring voice, that charmed a mother even to tears, and swelled a father's heart with fondest emotions,—to see and feel all this, is to see a fibre riven from your soul, and to realize an anguish which no earthly balm can heal. But look yet once again on that loved one, now still in death. See you not that fixed and holy smile, heaven's own signet ring, that beams from that marble brow—that smile which death itself can neither rifle nor destroy; and, as you gaze, you will be constrained to acknowledge, that He, who doeth all things well, has but removed that little one to a holier sphere—that the exchange of the warm embrace of the mother for the cold resting place of the grave, is but the transition of a redeemed spirit to that "Magnificent Habitation," which gathers within its ample courts the spirits of our glorified babes—"whose only discipline is love, and only lesson immortality and peace." Fold up the little dress and the little sock. Put them away with that tiny hat and half-worn shoe in some secret place, sacred to the memory of your little one, to be taken out as each mournful anniversary comes round in after years, and received with tearful eye as sad mementoes of buried hopes. Ah! but if in such hours of weeping, the opening of a drawer should be to you the opening of a little grave, call to mind the Saviour's words—"Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven"—and the Saviour's assurance—"Their angels do always behold the face of my Father, which is in heaven."

William Wheeler was attended by Drs. Bearisto and Atkinson. The funeral services in both cases were feelingly conducted by Rev. Mr. Bearisto, our esteemed Presbyterian minister.
