WINTER WHEAT, as four grand from NEW

the last lot)

four during the Autumn months, is what they term runny and dark in the color; this is owing to the flour being ground from new wheat.

shipped at the mill the 25th July and has just arrived, which I will sell at a small advance on cost.

Poetry.
(For the Carleton Sentinel.)

When the sun first shines in the Eastern sky,
And morn'g in his brightness glows on high,
To brighten and warm the waiting earth,
And give to the buds and sweet blossoms birth;
When the songsters warble their musical notes,
And sweetly the music through the air floats,
And a million bright gems do dazzle the eye,
As the Day King, in grandeur, moves through the sky;

I cheerfully haste to the wide spreading field,
That in fullness soon to my labor will yield,
There to work through the Spring day, bright and long.

And sing with the warblers my rustic song.
What need I care for the wealth of the great,
Or envy the rich their pride and their state;
Dependence they are on the work of the plow—
The farmer before them never need bow.

Where would be their wealth, where would be their pride,
If the plow through the soil never should glide?
I give to the nations their wealth and their pride.

Without me they could not exist for an hour.
Poets may sing of their heroes of fame
And dwell in sweet song on a nation's name;
The sailor may sail on the billowy sea,
The prospector bound on the mountains in glee,
The ladies in silks and in satins may walk,
The dukes and the nobles around them may stalk,
And orators, statesmen and warriors bold,
And miners that hoard up their millions of gold;
The work of them all would soon crumble to dust,
The pen and the scribe alike would soon rust,
Famine would spread its wings over the world,
The work of them all would be for naught unfurled.

But wherever I go prosperity's soon;
I sower the earth with a mantle of green,
The fields are soon waving with fair golden grain.

And beauty I bring to the hill and the plain,
In the flower's fair garden, where beauty did bloom
Ere sin or the world threw its shadow of gloom.
When, fresh from the hand of Omnipotent God,
I have sown the seed of life in the soil, They till the fresh soil and nurture the flowers.

And down in contentment in balmy bowers,
Then away with pride and away with the show,
Here the blessings of nature unceasingly flow;
The work of them all would be for naught unfurled,
And back in the sunshine that flows free from Heaven.

I would not exchange with a king for his throne;
I till the pure soil and I know "my own."
And trouble and care scarce come to my bed,
And how the world wags me no business at all.
So I'll till the world and be merry all day,
For who can be sad when all nature is gay.

—Rudicus, Dece.

Select Tale.
HOW I SAVED HER.
AN ADVENTURE IN ARIZONA.

Tucson was blooming. The Stein's Pass fever was at its height, and from every direction miners, prospectors, gamblers and adventurers came flocking into the railroad, bound for the new El Dorado.

I had been visiting friends at Fort Lowell, and had come to Tucson to spend the night, intending to take the morning train for my home in New Mexico. After rambling about the streets for a time looking on at the fair and pious games, the mock auction fairs, the stage performances, the foot and easy drinking halls, etc., I returned to the hotel and was shown to my room.

I had scarcely entered ere voices in the adjoining room attracted my attention, and the first remark I heard caused me to pause and to listen intently to the conversation.

"You don't catch on, Julia? You see we go in together, and the old man is lying asleep on the sofa taking his usual nap. I know where the money is in the upper bureau drawer, and while I'm out that you stand over him with a knife, and when he wakes you stab him. I get the money and we set the house on fire and kill him. See? It's the simplest thing in the world."

"Oh, heavens, Dan! a female voice replied, I can never do it. It makes me tremble to think of it. Can't we do something else?"

"No," the man replied. You must take hold of this, for your salvation depends on it. Remember we were here in this heathenish country dead broke, and if we don't make a raise on this well stored treasure, it will put in our pockets. I was
