(For the Carleton Sentinel.) Time's Pages. In the book of time

The pages number many That hold for me the cares of life; And few the roses in the strife. Nor seldom plucked, if any, In my book of time.

In early youth I grasped the book And turned its virgin cover To look on spotlesss leaves, But could not then discover The wealth of whiteness that relieves The learned sight of older look.

The learned sight of older look! Ah mel if we could but grasp In youth the sense of age, Graver thea would we unclasp, To write upon the title page Our name, this all-important book.

But little ships are sometimes borne Far out on the ocean's tide And wrecked by cruel waves: Tender souls too oft' confide In blandishments of grasping knaves, Who wreck their lives when yet 'tis morn

In after years I turn the book, Its pages now are marred With sorrow marks and tears; Purity and innocence are scarred With crosses, griefs and fears, When after years again I look.

Or the Liquor Habit, Positively Cured by Administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific. It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it; is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. It has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It never fails. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist.
