Another purely art feature of this number is the article on the young American sculptor, Olin Warner, illustrated by recan sculptor, Olin Warner, illustrated by reproductions of his work, most of them from drawings of the originals by Messrs. Kenyon Cox and Wyatt Eston. Mrs. Foote's third picture of the Far West is a full page drawing called "The Sheriff's Posse." The long announced articles by Mr. Charles DeKay, on Ireland, begin in this number, the first being entitled "Pagan Ireland," with illustrations of the mediseval castle at Clonmicnois, the Cross at Monasterboice, the round tower at Ardmore, etc. Monasterboice, the round tower at Ardmore, etc., Monasterboice, the round tower at Ardmore, etc., etc. Mr. Wilson, the photographer, continues his series on the Holy Land in connection with the International Sunday School Lessons. I do not venture to express any opinion as the future of India; whether England will Canada and Australia. I take it for granted that England will not long hold Canada, or very long hold Australia. I do not see how she could suffer in the least from the severance of the connection in either instance. Canada at present would be simply the victim of any war between England and the United States, supposing such a war possible; and she would be to England the sure means of a defeat. Canada would be the available battle ground which the American States would naturally choose. They could compel England to come and fight them there; and England could not hold her ground. I cannot see how England would be any the worse of if Australia were a friendly Juited States in the southern seas. I am not advocating any everance by England's hand of the ties which bold her colonics to her. I would not suggest anything of the kind So long as the colonies desire to keep to England, I would have England, if I could, keep firmly to the colonies. I am only pointing to the fact that, if the time does come, or, I might peraps put it, when the time does come, for Danada to join the United States or set up for herself-for Australia to form an inde pendent federation of her own—there is no reason to believe that England would be weakened in the slightest degree, and there s good reason to believe that she would be etter able to keep free of foreign entanglements than she is at present.
