Poetry. "Little Brown Hands."

They drive home the cowe from the pasture Up through the long shady lane, Where the quail whistles loud in the wheat field, All yellow with ripening grain.

They find, in the thick waving grasses,
Where the scarlet lipped strawberry grows,
They gather the earliest snowdrops,
And the first crimson buds of the rose. They toes the hay in the meadow, They gather the elder blooms white,

They find where the draky grapes purple
In the soft tinted October light. They know where the apples hang ripest, And are sweeter than Italy's wines; They know where the fruit is the thickest

On the long, thorny blackberry vines. They gather the delicate sea weeds,
And build tiny castles of sand;
They pick up the beautiful sea shells—
Fair parks that have drifted to land.

They wave from the tall, rocking tree tops, Where the oriole's hammock nest swings, And at night time are folded in slumber By a song that a fond mother sings. Those who toil bravely are strongest;
The humble and poor become great;
And from those brown handed children

Shall grow mighty rulers of state. The pen of the author and statesman, The mobie and wise of our land. The sword and chisel and palette Shall be held in the little brown hand. -New Haven News.
