Had he supposed it was not his legal right he would not bave taken his seat. He had not heard of the protest until that morning. He was thankful to the committee for replacing them in their seats, and they would try and serve the best interests of Andover. He thought the clause in committee's report referring to Scott was unnecessary, as the matter was foreign to the election, and was rather a personal reflection Last session it was found that building committee had done a certain amount of work and presented their bill for the same, which was ordered paid, so that the reflection on Scott was not exactly cor-

mittee on public buildings. Coup. Fraser was glad to have Coup. Porter again at the board, but still it must be remembered that, perhaps, an appeal might be taken to a higher court. There was a standing resolution of the Council that not more than $8 be expended in repairs on Court house, without special orders from this Council. This was why the committee had alluded to the subject in their report, so that the matter could be investigated, and if found that Scott had overstepped his duty, it would not be establishing a precedent for over-expenditures in the future.

Coun. Porter said that if the $8 resolution had been violated, the charge would lay against the building committee, not Scott. Coun. Scott said that last year was the first time he had acted as councillor. He was appointed on the building committee; the committee found the court house in bad shape; the necessary repairs were made, the bill for the same presented to Council and ordered paid. While not more that $8.00 could be expended without coming to the board, yet this bill did come to the board .would rather have paid the money out of his own pocket than to have the building remain in its disgraceful condition; he would bave been mertified to have had the Yankees come here, as they did recently, and see the building in ite then condition.
