The Pulpit on Bribery.

According to the papers, clergymen have been aroused in Fredericton and elsewhere to condemn from their pulpits the system of bribery and corruption that has become so demoralizing an element in elections. Here, in Woodstock, on Sunday evening last, Rev. Mr. Dobson from the Methodist pulpit denounced in etrongest terms this crying sin, and if by any chance, of course it is scarcely possible, there were those present who had either bribed, attempted to bribe or accepted a bribe in connection with any election, they must have left the church with conscience closely environed by his anathemas.

This is where, we think, as regards political matters the obristian ministry should do good service. It is not for the pulpit attempt to teach mere party politice or declaim against this or exalt that particular dogma of statesmen or partizans, but where the public morals are being sapped and most important and sacred rights are being made things of barter; where electorates are being demoralized then the pulpits of the land demoralized then the pulpits of the land ing presses yet produced will be furnished to factory proof that our people are progressive factory proof that our people are p

York Speaks.

Mr. Blair is to be congratulated; York County has responded to his appeal and returned bimself and his ontire ticket with a handsome majority. It is said by the oppo sition that much money was spent to secure result. We tear this is true and have no sympathy with the means used, but i being equally clear that both sides were equally guilty, condemning the methods is a condemnation of both alike, and the methode we do most heartily condemn and, in their use, the parties implicated.

The battle of the polls was most vigorously fough: It was a fight not merely of Mr Blair and his colleague candidates, to retain or secure the representation of York County but it was a fight upon the result of which Government. Mr. Blair, then, carried with him into the contest a grave responsibility; his was a position seldom occupied by a po-
