Cuticura Remedies.

About even years ago I bad a numor break out upon my taze; it started in a small blotch and looked like the sting of a bee, then it spread and looked like a ringworm, and became very painful. Tat once went to one of the best doctors in the city, and he could do me no good. No less that twelve of the best doctors have had a trial at my face, and all of them failed. I will not give you all ist of their names, but will say that they were from Roston, New York, and Maine, aleo from England. Roston, New York, and Maine, aleo from England. The December Century is more 'Chrismasy' than is usual with that magazine, there being a Christmas story by Joel Chandler Harris, and a Christmas poem by President Henry Morton, of Stevens Institute, while the editor in 'Some Christmas Reflections' says that perhaps the readers may find as much of the true Christian feeling in Dr. Abbott's article 'Can a Nation' readers may find as much of the true Christian feeling in Dr. Abbott's article 'Can a Nation Have a Religion?' and in the article on the 'Record of Virtue,' as in the more ostensibly Christmas 'features' of this number of The Century. The frontispiece is a striking head, 'Daphne,' by George W. Maynard in The Century Series of American Pictures,' and the opening paper is General Bidwell's account of 'Life in California Before the Gold Discovery.' Here is also published 'Ranch and Mission Days in Alta California:' these two articles showing with what thoroughness The Century's new and important series is being carried out. The fiction of this number includes stories by Joel Chandler Harris, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps—'Fourteen to One' (a true atory); Richard Harding Davis, and Maurice Thompson—'A Pair of Old Boys;' F. Hopkinson Smith's 'Colonel Carter of Cartersville' is continued; and 'Sister Dolorosa,' a three-part story, by James Lane Allan is begun. The poetry of the number has nothing more striking than the half dozen novel pieces entitled: 'Some Boys,' by James Whitcomb Riley, and printed, with pictures by Kemble, in Bric-a-Brac. Further topics treated are 'Trees in America,' 'The Railway Zone-Tariff of Hungary,' and 'Higher Education: A Word to Women,' the latter an open letter by Miss Josephine Lazars. g in Dr. Abbott's article 'Can a Natio

Is the pertinent question asked by the Can-adian Poultry Review, Toronto, one of the fore-most magazines of its kind in America. It is a monthly, well printed, on the finest paper, splendidly illustrated by its special artists, contributed to by the leading writers of Canada, the United States, and England, on all matters the United States, and England, on all matters appertaining to poultry; and makes a specialty of its "Popular Questions Answered by Praccal Peultrymen" column. It also has a medical and question department in charge of a prominent medical man and breeder, which alone is worth a year's subscription. It contains full show reports with scores attached, and criticisms on the judging. The subscription is one dollar per year, but Mr. H. B. Donovan, the Publisher, has offered readers of this paper the privilege of sending in their own name with one new subscription for only $1.50 or 75c each. This offer is good for but a limited time, so avail yourself of it now. The Canadian Kennel Gazette, the official organ of the Canadian Kennel Club, and Pigeons and Pets are also published from the same office.

SCOTCH,

WASHINGTON LETTER. (From our Regular Correspondent,) Washington, D. C., Nov. 28, 1890.
Leading Republicans, such as Speaker Reed and Representative McKinley, say that there will be no financial legislation, at this session of Congress; but there is a strong element in the Republican party that will demand in loud tones that a free coinage bill be passed or that something be done to largely increase the volume of currency in circulation. It is an important and interesting question, and it is certain to be heard from this winter, both in and out of Congress.

The Speakership fight is quiet on the surface. but raging fiercely in the under current of politics. Mr. Mills' announcement that he would retire from the House at the close of the fifty-second Congress was a very shrewd move, and it has undoubtedly improved his chances, and it looks now as if he might be the man if a Southern men he chance had chances, and it looks now as if he might be the man, if a Southern man be chosen, but of course he has to contend against the various combinations certain to be made against any man who obtains a temporary lead, and the fact that he openly proclaims himself a free trader will undoubtedly lose him some votes. There is a conservative wing of the Democratic party, at the head of which is Representative Flower, who has a "barrel," and Presidential aspirations, which is decidedly opposed to any radical treatment of the tariff question. This element is working to have Mr. Flower placed at the head of the Ways and Means committee of the next House, and it is claimed they will refuse to support any candidate for Speaker who does not pledge himself to put him there.

The Republican programme has been announced for the session. It embraces the passage of an apportionment bill, the circuit Learn our Prices. passage of an apportionment bill, the circuit court bill, a shipping bill, the regular appropriation bills, and the Federal election bill. To carry out this programme two things will be absolutely necessary—a change in the rules of the Senate and the presence of a constant quorum of Republicans in the House, as the Democrats have announced their in as the Democrate have announced their intention to oppose every one of these measures except the regular appropriation bills. There is said to be in existence a written agreement signed by 43 Republican senators to change the rules and pass the election bill before the Christmas holidays.

There is one notable thing in mingling with the returning congressmen of both parties—they all speak in most respectful terms of the claims of the Farmers Alliance, and that is a good deal more than they did when here last. Votes always command the respect of politicians.
