Doubtless the SENTINEL bas already given its its bearings than would be possible for me, but I may be pardoned for going over the ground again in a perhaps new connection. He is a general contractor. bie specialty being dock building He bas been conrected with some o' the larges works in the United States and in toroign countries. He has long considered the pose bility of St. John becoming the chief winter seaport of the Dominion and a great port, certainly the second, at all sessors. Careful study both as a capitairst and expert bas con vinced him of its entire feasibility.

Mr. Leary has bought a large piece of water front at Carleton where he proposes to build an extensive system of dry-docks, wet docks, warehouses and grain elevators in direct conection with the various railways having THE OPTICIAN OF MONTREAL WILL semini at St. John so that trains may be VISIT THE STORE OF THEIR AGENT termini at St. John so that trains may be run on the docks, and care and vessels be loaded and unloaded directly from one to the other, thus eaving the enormous expense of trans-shipment by lighters to and from ves-

The building of the Eric Canal, for which the city and State of New York and the National Government taxed themselves beavily, has contributed more than any other dozen causes to make New York the Metropolic of America and has given her a commercial supremacy that cannot be wrested from her. Bad government and the supinences of corporations have however, as I shall show later, prevented her from resping the full benefits intended to be conferred by this great public work.

I referred to the question of taxation. I bave not figures by me but my recollection is that the proportion of the State tax paid by the city of New York is over three fitths of the whole. Her population is but between one-fourth and one-fifth of the population of the State.

I said that New York had not been benefitted so fully as she might and should by the Erie canal. This great waterway conceived by the genius of De. Witt Clinton gaver her direct communication with the head of Lake Superior, and opened to her the forests and Superior, and opened to her the forests and farms and mines of the mighty empire skirting the great lakes. She however neglected to supplement Clintone's perfect work with adequate dock and harbor facilities. She knew the supreme advantage she had gained over rival seaports and was content to rest on her oars. Her dock system is conceded to be the worst in the world. It is under the control of the city government. Even now the dock department is under investigation
