I cannot eav enough in praise of the CUTICURA REMEDIES My boy, when ore year of age. was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair Feb. 28-The Temptation of Jesus. Luke His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the doctors said was scall-head, and that his hair would never grow again. Despairing of a cure from physicians, I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and, I am happy to say with the most perfect success. His hair is now splendid, and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the CUTICURA REMEDIES to mothers as the most speedy, economical and sure cure for all skin diseases of intents and children, and feel that every mother who has an affi cted child will thank me for so doing.

A stay of one day and a cruise among the hills with a military guard, as no one is safe here from brigands. When I have time I will tell you many tales of these rascals. Again on we go, and a stop at Philippopolis, an ancient Biblical town, now a manufacturing centre, situated in a level and fertile country: on every ated in a level and fertile country; on every hand are to be seen immense mounds of earth as monuments to the dead, built by the Mohammedans. Since the freedom of these countries from Turkey in 1878, there has been rapid improvement, nearly all the Mohammedras left rather than live in a christian and and approvement to death in the tian land, and many starved to death in the change. Now we reach the Turkish boundary; passports, baggage examined, a hasty lunch, and in a few hours arrive at Adrionople, a fine little town; here we remain one day to look around, and then take the train for the city od the Golden Horn, where we arrive in ten hours after a most enjoyable journey. For some distance before reaching Constantinople, the road skirts along the beautiful sea of Marmora, and through several luvely villages used as summer resorts, and past many ancient fortifications of the Byzantine period, and at last into I think the dirtiest little station I ever saw. The fi st impressions are far from being good, and I tear, a long soj iurn does not have the tendency to improve matters much. The city pro-baby has the finest situation of any in the world, placed as it is on the Marmora and Boephorous, terminating in the Golden Constantinople is divided into three great

Look now along the waters of the Golden descovered amongst the shipping. Strange fantastic craft are crowded near the bridge; boats from the Black Sea with high, beak-like prow and stern rights with high, beaklike prow and stern richly carved, and gilt and colored. The turbined crews lounge and colored. The turbined crews lounge about the low decks, forming unconscious subjects as the light brings out a spot of carmine from girdle or jacket, and brightens the faded blues and greens of their weather stained garments. The coarse sail cloth drooping neavily from the long yard is of a brown and dingy blue, pierced by the golden rays, it is flecked with dashes of orange and glowing red; crowds of people are returning from the red; crowds of people are returning from the bazars and different business places of the city in every variety of boat (the Jews predominate), one or two caiques, then a cluster hurrying to shoot the arch, before one of the great unweildy barges blocks the way, which is being heaved along by several men who at each sweep of the oar rise to a standing posture and thus throw their whole force into the downward effort. I noticed this method in all the Turkish war and other heavy boats; it certainly accellerates the speed, but must be very hard on the men, rising at every stroke, but I am told that they do not mind it. The slender caiques shoot past, light and rapid, and skimming over the tranquil water, other boots are streaming upwards as far as one can see, singly and in groups. Now a cargo of Turkish women, next Persians Now a eargo of Turkish women, next Persians in their pointed caps. Then we hear a thud of oars; it is a Pasha's large caique. The great man site heavy and solemn, cross-legged, on his divan in the bottom of the boat, which is sceered by an attendant crouching on the scarlet cloth thrown over the raised part of the stern. The silken gauze sleeves of the caiques (rowers) waive in unison with the even strokes; more boats dart by, another, two boats freighted by a festive party—in one boat the revellers, in the other the musicians, all having a olly time, but I musicians, all having a olly time, but thought the mucic rather inharmonique Now here comes an omnibus caique carrying assengers at a lower rate than the steamers. This boat holds from 20 to 30 persons of various classes, colors and nationalities. EDITORS SENTINEL,—The Missouri valley is just now enjoying the most delightful weather, and the entire winter has been one of the mildjust now enjoying the most delightful weather, and the entire winter has been one of the mildest in many years. So far Kansas Cityans have had but one day of sleigh riding during the present season, and for the hours the snow lasted Grand Avenue presented a novel appearance. Cutters, pungs and sleighs of every description were mingled promiscuously and good turnouts were in demand at the rate of $3.00 per boar. If Rice Tupper or Gus Gilman could have transported their outfits to Kansas City tor that one ported their outfits to Kansas City for that one day it would have been worth a small fortune

Perhaps the farmers of Carleton County would be interested in hearing something of the condition of the agricultural classes in the West and their profits during the past year. Corn is the staple product although wheat and oats are produced in large quantities. The State of Missouri, which is the largest and most prosperous of the western states, will probably produce three hundred million bushels of corn. forty in this market sixty five cents per bushel, corn twenty cents and oats eighteen cents per bushel.

These quotations, bowever, do pet represent the amount received by the farmers, as the railroads require about 20 per cent of the value of corn from the Kansas tarmer to pay freight charges to Kansas City. In addition to this the grain elevators and commussion men exact a profit so the net amount received by the produc er is very small, being not more than eight to ten cents per bushel for corn, and twelve cents for oats. In western Kansas there are many farmers utilizing the best grades of red corn for fuel, not being able to buy coal. The prairie country, stretching from the Missouri river to the Rocky Mountains, contains no trees except. ing small cottonwood along the banks of streams, and shade trees planted by the settlers a few years ago, so that wood for fuel is not available. The price of farm produce may be low in Arosetook and Carleton Counties, but the condition of the farmers there is in my opinion more preferable than that of their brothers in the West. that through many months of terribly hot weather my health began to feel the strain, It is true, probably, that the agricultural I had already been pretty well over Europe, The high tariff on lumber bears heavily of and wished new scenes and experiences, the entire western country, as this section Being so far east, a hurried cruise through contains no timber land and an im-
